

How to Observe the High Holidays in Your Home Told in Detail for the Uninitiated

Before each important holiday, The Post plans to print a Home Observance Bulletin similar to this one. If enough readers so request, they will be gathered into pamphlet for easy handling and distributed.

BY RABBI SYLVAN D. SCHWARTZMAN

Why We Observe the High Holydays—The High Holyday season, known as the Days of Awe or Penitence, extends throughout the ten-day period from Rosh Hashonoh to Yom Kippur. They are days designed to prompt the Jew to self-examination and reconciliation with God. The seriousness with which the Jew ushers in his New Year or Rosh Hashonoh is testimony to the belief that God sits in judgment over individuals and nations at this time. The ten-day period thus provides each Jew with the opportunity to reconsider his deeds of the past year, to repent of his sins against God and man, and to resolve to mend his ways and follow the paths of complete uprightness throughout the New Year.

The theme of the High Holydays is repentance. On Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, God's judgment is sealed; either the individual's repentance is complete and he becomes morally re-born, or he sinks lower and lower in the sight of God and his fellowman and is deserving of the evil decree. It is to be emphasized that the Jew's repentance is not acceptable before God unless it be accompanied by extending the hand of forgiveness to his enemies. Then, too, repenting of one's past sins must be followed by the conscious resolve and effort never to repeat those transgressions. The High Holydays, then, offer to each Jew a yearly opportunity to remould his character and to become clean and pure before his Creator.

Traditionally Rosh Hashonoh is celebrated for two days. This, however, is due to the fact that originally the date of the New Year was set through a procedure of having witnesses testify to their having seen the appearance of the new moon. (Rosh Hashonoh's date is the first day of the lunar month of Tishri). After the report of the witnesses was accepted, messengers were sent out to proclaim the date throughout Palestine.

JEWISH STATE DECIDED: DETAILS UNCERTAIN

Special
INDIANAPOLIS—That the fate of Palestine has already been definitely decided between England and the United States, and that in his opinion a Jewish State would be established at the end of the war was declared here by Rabbi James G. Heller, of Cincinnati, chairman of the National Administrative Committee of the Zionist Organization of America. Dr. Heller spoke here in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal of which he is a national chairman.

Although the decision has been made, Rabbi Heller said that none of the details such as boundaries, etc., had been worked out. Rabbi Heller thought that some form of partition would be embodied in the final plan. Undersecretary of State Stettinius laid the ground work for the final plans when he discussed Palestine with the British Foreign Office on his recent visit to London, Rabbi Heller said.

Rabbi Heller's remarks were made in the question and answer period.

In his talk Rabbi Heller revealed that the United Jewish Appeal would spend $40,000,000 in 1944, although its quota was only $32,000,000. He did not reveal how much had been raised this year, but Henry Montor, U. J. A.'s executive director said here two weeks ago that about $28,000,000 would be raised this year.

Within a month, Rabbi Heller declared, there will be need for tremendous sums to salvage the Jews of the Balkans. Rabbi Heller said that sum would be needed not next year or in a few years, but now.

Soviet Offers Ships For Food For Polish Jews

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
OTTAWA—The Soviet embassy here will make Russian ships available for the transportation of relief supplies to the Jews in liberated sections of Poland, as soon as such arrangements are approved by Moscow, a delegation of the Canadian Jewish Congress was assured this week by Soviet ambassador George Zarubin.

The delegation, headed by Samuel Bronfman, Congress president, discussed with Mr. Zarubin the various problems involved in getting, food, clothing, medicine and other relief supplies to the Jews in Poland. The Jewish leaders said that the Congress was ready to supply unlimited quantities of assistance provided trans-

The ambassador expressed sympathy with the Congress' aims and said that he would immediately contact Moscow to secure information concerning all aspects of the relief problem.

SECOND SESSION OF CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN PITTSBURGH DECEMBER 3-5

Special
NEW YORK—The second session of the American Jewish Conference will be held Dec. 3 to 5, inclusive, at the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa. The call for the second session went out today to the delegates from the Administrative Committee.

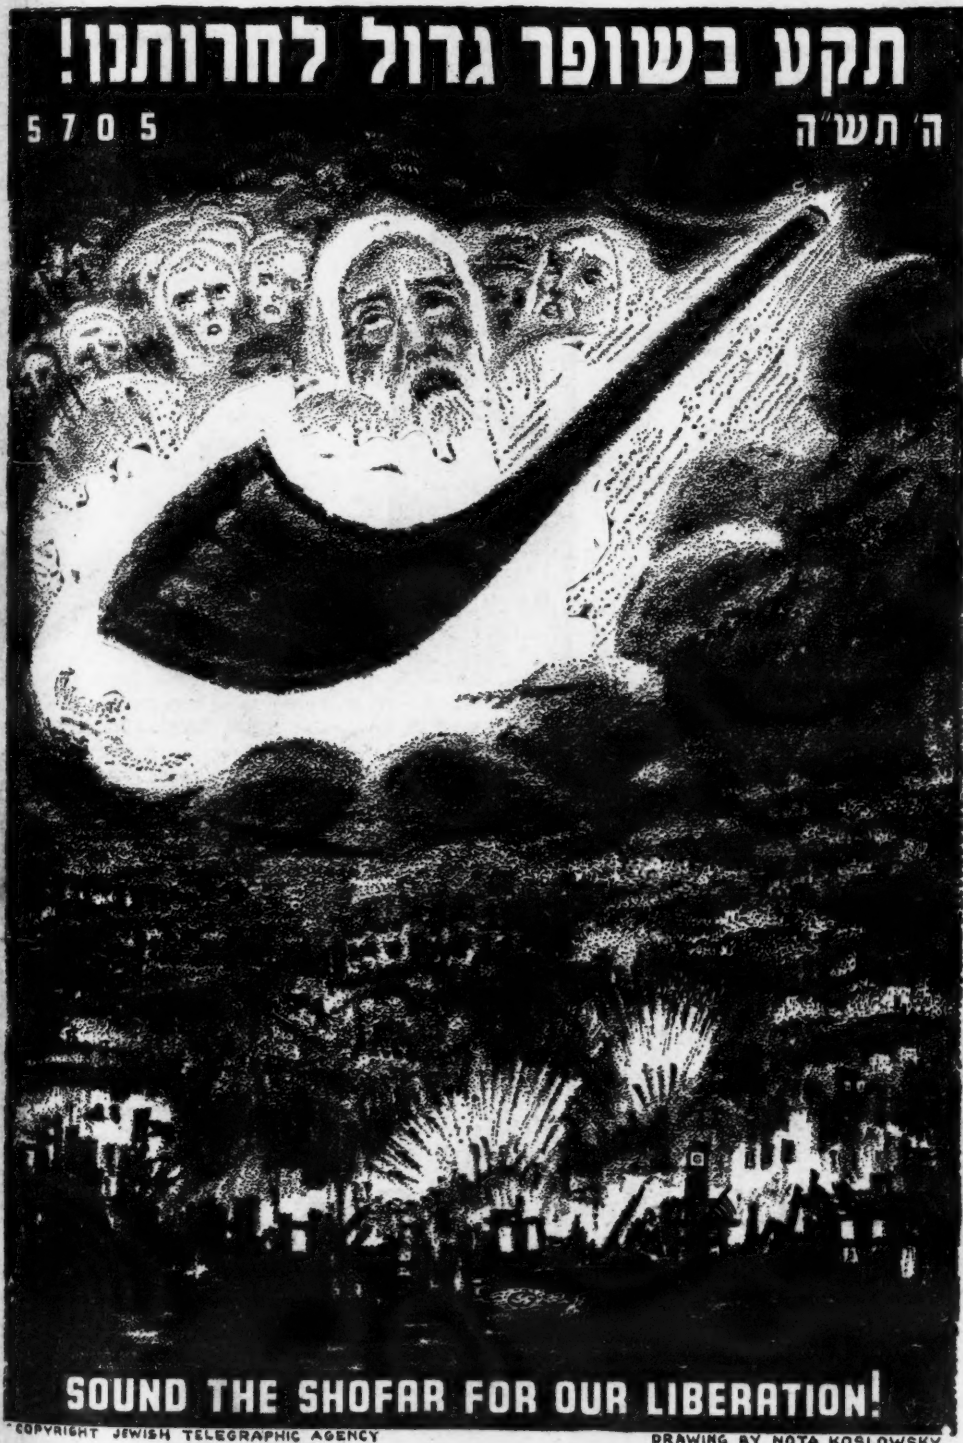

Originally it was intended to hold the second session in Chicago over the Labor Day weekend, but a ninety day postponement was voted by the Interim Committee in June, in compliance with the request of the Office of Defense Transportation.

Subsequently the place was shifted from Chicago to Pittsburgh, in view of the fact that Jews,

On the unfinished business from the first session is the selection of a delegation to represent American Jewry at the Peace Conference.

The United Jewish Appeal has received a gift from 203 Methodist high school students of the Green Mountain Junior College of Vermont as their contribution to aid in the relief and reconstruction of homeless and oppressed Jews.

REFUGEE AID OFFICIAL SEES END TO ANTI-SEMITISM IN EUROPE

By PAT FRANK

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
ROME—An optimistic view concerning the future disappearance of anti-Semitism in liberated Europe was voiced here by Sir Clifford Heathcote-Smith, representative of the Intergovernmental Committee for Refugees. Speaking to this correspondent, Sir Clifford pointed out that anti-Semitism without Nazi and Fascist stimulus has died a sudden death in liberated Italy. This, he said, will be the case in other countries after the fall of the Nazi regime in Germany. "As the battleline in Italy swept northward," Sir Clifford stated, "Italian peasants hid and sheltered Jews, saving them from seizure and deportation to death at the hands of the retreating Germans."

San Francisco Groups Join Up In Council

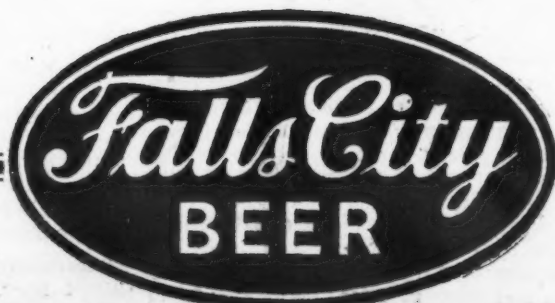

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
SAN FRANCISCO—Formation of the "Associated Jewish Organizations of San Francisco," the first Jewish community council to be established here, was announced today. The new group, which has been organized as a result of a merger of the Jewish Survey and B'nai B'rith Community Committee and the United Jewish Council, will invite all Jewish organizations in the city with at least 125 members to join.

A New Year Message

JEWS OF U. S. GREETED AT HOLIDAY SEASON

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Upon this celebration of the New Year, I extend to my fellow citizens of the Jewish faith most cordial greetings, mindful of the tragedy in which so many of their faith still live abroad, and determined withal to persevere until justice, tolerance and peace are established throughout the world.

THOMAS E. DEWEY

As Governor of the State of New York and on my own behalf, I am happy to extend to the people of Jewish faith my heartiest greetings and sincere good wishes at the beginning of their New Year.

There never was a time, I believe, in the history of the Jewish people when the celebration of Rosh Hashanah was so pregnant with meaning. At this particular date, it should also bring consolation and hope.

This year marks the destruction of the enemy who made it the first article of their creed to torture and destroy the Jewish people. In these painful years, all have learned the grim truth; that those oppressors are the enemies of all decency, of all freedom, of all civilization.

In the battle for freedom, soldiers of Jewish faith have played a brilliant and thrilling part, notable for valor and endurance. While we all rejoice with you, we also mourn with you for all the brave fighting men who have perished. We mourn with you, too, for the untold, unparalleled sufferings and destruction inflicted upon those of your faith in the conquered countries. We feel with you, too, the horror and the incredulity at the unexampled and unbelievable mass destruction which has been visited upon the Jewish communities in Europe as the Nazi hordes flee desperately from the doom that pursues them throughout the Continent of Europe.

You have occasion to celebrate your 5705th New Year in the spirit of hope, such as has not been possible for a long, long time. You have cause, too, for hope that the quickening tempo of our victorious armies may soon bring to an end the assault upon civilization in Europe.

The people of Jewry also have the consolation that from each successful trial that they have undergone, they have emerged stronger. Persecution after persecution has served only to toughen and weld the character of the Jewish people to a vitality which nothing can corrode.

Our Americans of Jewish faith have contributed mightily to our culture, our policy, our citizenship, our respect for the dignity of the individual. May these essential qualities of a civilized world be brought to suffering peoples everywhere.

We have reason to believe that the coming year will be inscribed as a truly happy one.

VICE PRESIDENT WALLACE

Rosh Hashanah in 1944 should be more joyous for the Jewish people than any which have been celebrated for the past 10 years. No people has borne such a heavy burden of war; no people has lost such a high percentage by death and starvation. But now again there is a "saving remnant" and this remnant will carry forward into the new day the democratic hope and high religious spirit which has always been implicit in the Jewish way of life.

"May Rosh Hashanah in 1944 be as a door closing upon miseries of the past and opening to the realization of aspirations and to unexpected opportunities for peace and fruitful labor in the days ahead."

SECRETARY HULL

On this occasion of the celebration of the Jewish New Year, as I send cordial greetings to all our citizens of Jewish faith, I should like also to express my sincere hope that the coming months will bring to an end the present devastating world conflict, and with it the solution to the tragic problems that endure for others of your faith on the continent of Europe.

SEC. OF INTERIOR ICKES

I extend greetings and good wishes for the NEW YEAR to my fellow Americans of the Jewish religion. Although the last twelve months have been a period of rising hope, the plight of your co-religionists in Europe has been only slightly ameliorated.

The grief and anguish which this war has brought to thousands, and more especially to those of Jewish faith, will leave an indelible mark on mankind. It is my fervent hope that victory can quickly be achieved and that we, as a nation, may help reconstruct a world in which men will respect each other as humans entitled by right to enjoy the freedoms which are the mark of civilization.

JUDGE JOS. M. PROSKAUER
American Jewish Committee

May the New Year vitalize and perpetuate in our hearts and minds the spirit and resolutions of the holiday. May it lead us, in the words of the High Holy Day service, to "conclude a union," a union in which right and justice will preempt partisan and narrow considerations. May it bring us beyond the long and slippery road of blood to the junction where all men will meet in the task of reconstructing homes and schools, cultural values and tradition. May the New Year witness increased efforts on the part of American Jewry to help bring about the rehabilitation of the shattered Jewish communities throughout the world.

ARCHIE H. GREENBERG
Jewish War Vets

Both as Americans and as Jews, we greet the New Year with happiness in our hearts and thanks in our voices. With our heroic armies winning the victories that make possible liberation from the threat of Nazi tyranny, the liberty loving people of the world enter into a new era of freedom and democracy.

AMERICAN JEWISH CONFERENCE

The tragedy of Jewish life was rendered insufferable not only by reason of the shameful abuse of the tormented body of the Jewish people, but because of the prolonged indifference to their plight by the democratic world, which even after it had challenged the barbarians to the arbitrament of war, persisted in avoiding consideration of Jewish suffering; refraining from help when help could be given; closing the doors of escape when escape was still possible; and exercising an ominous restraint in giving any assurance to the Jewish people as to their place in a free world.

Today our hearts rejoice at the sight of Jewish liberation in lands where only yesterday oppression was the order of the day. Every area occupied by the United Nations brings the restoration of Jewish rights and status, the recovery of equality, the ouster of every remnant of the vile purposes of Nuremberg. Every victory registers under the restored symbols of Justice and Democracy. The Hosts of the Lord are on the march to complete the victory.

In the new world which is being revealed in all its outlines from day to day, we anticipate the fulfillment of our hope for the full restoration of the rights of Jews as equals in all lands and the establishment of Palestine as the Jewish Commonwealth.

We wish all our friends and patrons and all the Jewish people—a year of health, happiness and prosperity

HOW TO OBSERVE THE HOLIDAYS IN YOUR HOME EXPLAINED

Because it took considerable time for the news to become public, a two-day observance of Rosh Hashonoh was decreed to insure the proper observance of the day. This addition of an extra day in the observance of a Jewish holiday is equally applicable in the case of Succoth, Passover, and Shabuoth. In later times the astronomical calculation of the Jewish calendar became so precise that it was not necessary to accept the testimony of witnesses, and the holiday dates became fixed in every detail. Nevertheless, Orthodox and Conservative Jews still observe the extra day. Reform Judaism, however, accepting the stability of the modern Jewish calendar has eliminated the second day of Rosh Hashonoh and similarly, of other holidays.

The most important days of the High Holyday Season of ten days are: Rosh Hashonoh (New Year's Day), Shabbos Shuva (the Sabbath of Repentance which is the Sabbath that occurs during the ten-day period), and Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement). All of these holidays are observed primarily in the Synagogue, but there are many fine home ceremonies connected with each. All the days, of course, extend from sundown until sundown the next day.

ROSH HASHONOH

Special Foods—Perhaps symbolically, honey became the special food for Rosh Hashonoh. The New Year is to start off with a sweet taste in our mouths. Therefore, the bread that is blessed at the beginning of the Rosh Hashonoh evening meal is dipped in honey before it is eaten. From this custom, sweets of all sorts became customary for Rosh Hashonoh.

Rosh Hashonoh Table—The Rosh Hashonoh table is set precisely as the Sabbath table with kiddush cup, challoh, candles and candlesticks (minimum of two). Special challoh cloths for Rosh Hashonoh are appropriate. The dish with honey should be given a prominent place on the table.

Lighting of the Candles—Following the procedure in the case of the Sabbath, the Mother should light the candles and recite this blessing:

Bo-ruch A-toh A-do-noi Me-lech Ho-o-lom A-sheh Kid-sho-nu B'mitz-vo-sov V'tzi-vo-nu L'had-lik Ner Shel Rosh Ha-shonoh.

Praised be Thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who hast sanctified us by Thy commandments and commanded us to kindle the lights of the New Year.

Prayer and Kiddush—The Father then rises and takes up the wine cup in his right hand. He recites the following prayer and Kiddush blessing:

Let us praise God with this symbol of joy and thank Him for the blessings which this New Year's day brings to us. Happy are we that God has granted us another year of life; and may it be His will to inscribe us for happiness and peace in the Book of Life, for the coming year.

Bo-ruch A-toh A-do-noi E-lo-hey-nu Me-lech ho-o-lom Bo-rey P'ri Ha-gofen.

Praised be Thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who hast created the fruit of the vine.

Bo-ruch A-toh A-do-noi E-lo-hey-nu Me-lech Ho-o-lom She-heh-chi-vo-nu V'kee-yi-mo-nu V'hi-gi-o-nu La-z'man Ha-zeh.

Praised be Thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who has granted us life, sustained us, and permitted us to reach this New Year.

Father drinks and passes the wine cup round the table for all to drink therefrom.

Blessing Over the Bread—The Father breaks the bread, passes a piece to each person present, and each one dips the bread in honey. The Father then recites the blessing:

Bo-ruch A-toh A-do-noi E-lo-hey-nu Me-lech Ho-o-lom Ha-mo-tzi Le-chem Min Ho-o-retz.

Praised be Thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who causest the earth to yield food for all.

Each one at the table partakes of the bread and honey.

Blessing of the Children—The custom of the Sabbath blessing of the children also applies on Rosh Hashonoh Eve. The Father places his hands upon the head of each child in turn and silently pronounces an appropriate blessing as the heart may prompt. He may use the following prayer:

May the God of our fathers bless you throughout the New Year! May He who has guided you through the trials of the past year lead you to be a continued honor to our family. May He who has protected us from all evil in the past make you ever a blessing to Israel, and all mankind. Amen.

Grace After Dinner—The Rosh Hashonoh meal is served. When it is over, the Father remains seated and recites the following Grace:

O Lord, Thou art our Shepherd, and we shall not want. Thou openest Thy hand and satisfiest the needs of every living being. We thank Thee for the gifts of Thy bounty which we have enjoyed at this table. As Thou hast provided for us in the past, so mayest Thou sustain us throughout our lives. Thy kindness endureth forever, and we put our trust in Thee. While we enjoy Thy gifts, may we never forget the needy, nor allow those who want, to be forsaken. May our table be an altar of loving kindness, and our home a temple in which Thy spirit of goodness dwells. May it be Thy will, O Lord our God and God of our fathers, that we may be blessed with Thy bounty and with health and happiness throughout the New Year.

Bo-ruch A-toh A-do-noi Ha-zan Es Ha-kol.

We praise Thee, O Lord, who in kindness sustainest the world.

High Holyday Greetings—Father then extends the High Holyday Greeting, Le-sho-noh To-vo Ti-ko-say-vu, (May you be inscribed for a good year), to which all respond with: Gam A-toh (you, too). The Le-sho-noh To-vo Ti-ko-say-vu greeting is the traditional Rosh Hashonoh greeting both in the home and at the synagogue. Following the greeting, the family prepares to leave for the synagogue Rosh Hashonoh Eve service.

Visiting on Rosh Hashonoh—On Rosh Hashonoh, in the evening following the service, and during the afternoon of New Year's Day, it is customary to visit one's relatives and friends and extend New Year's Greetings. Many Reform Rabbis hold open house on Rosh Hashonoh afternoon and congregants call at their Rabbi's home for the mutual exchange of greetings. It is also customary for each Jew to send good wishes for the New Year through the mail to out-of-town friends and dear ones.

SHABBOS SHUVA

What is Shabbos Shuva—Shabbos Shuva, known as the Sabbath of Repentance, occurs on the Friday night and Saturday which fall between Rosh Hashonoh and Yom Kippur. This Sabbath receives its name from the opening word of the prophetic passage read in the synagogue on this day: "Return (shuva), O Israel, unto the Lord thy God." (Hosea 14:2). Its theme is in keeping with the spirit of the ten-day period and pleads for the repentance of the individual Jew.

Observance of Shabbos Shuva—The Sabbath of Repentance is observed in the home precisely as are the other Sabbaths. The synagogue service, however, stresses the idea of repentance which runs through the High Holyday season. In Jewish tradition it is this Sabbath which is the most strictly observed of all the Sabbaths of the year.

YOM KIPPUR

Special Pre-Fast Foods—The dinner on Yom Kippur Eve is traditionally a heavy one, and there is one special dish connected with it. This is Kreplach (a three-cornered piece of dough filled with meat) and it is usually added to the soup. (The recipe will be found at the end of this bulletin.) The regular Sabbath Eve tzimmes (carrot-pudding) is also a part of the meal.

Kindling of the Light—It is customary to keep a 24-hour candle burning throughout the Day of Atonement. Most Jews use the modern Yahrzeit (anniversary of death) candle consisting of a wick set in a glass of wax. The light is kindled by the Mother following the dinner, just before the family departs for the synagogue. The blessing which the Mother recites is:

Bo-ruch A-toh A-do-noi E-lo-hey-nu Me-lech Ho-o-lom A-sheh Kid-sho-nu B'mitz-vo-sov V'tzi-vo-nu L'had-lik Ner Shel Yom Ha-kippur-im.

Praised be Thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who hast sanctified us by Thy commandments and commanded us to

Wildest Phantasy on Anti-Semitism Exceeded by Reality

HERBERT J. SELIGMANN

Jewish Telegraphic Agency

WASHINGTON — The wildest phantasies on the subject of the "international Jew" about whom Henry Ford, among others, made it his business to spread evil fiction before the war, cannot keep pace with the reality of international fascism.

At the very moment the furnaces of Majdanek in the outskirts of Lublin were giving up charred skeletons; and the charnel houses where Nazi perverts and butchers tortured, robbed and murdered a million and a half human beings in the greatest crime of history were giving up their horrors—at the very moment when the conscience of the civilized world was stirred to its depths by these revelations of unparalleled depravity—the spirit that produced these infamies was being voiced openly at a meeting on American soil.

At the Detroit convention of Gerald L. K. Smith's "America First" party a Chicago delegate, Homer Mairtz, urged that Jews be deported from the United States and that those who would not leave voluntarily be sterilized. This is the language and the spirit of Adolf Hitler and of the butcher Heinrich Himmler. Someone has remarked that every anti-Semite is in reality a potential murderer. To this should be added that, on the evidence of the remarks uttered without rebuke at Gerald Smith's misnamed "America First" gathering, every anti-Semite in addition to being a potential murderer is a pervert and a potential torturer.

If Hitler and Himmler are enemies of mankind, then so are those, in America and elsewhere, who voice their ideas and their propaganda. Whatever such people may call themselves is immaterial in face of the fact that their doctrines and Hitler's are identical.

Charges Reported Without Comment

That it is possible for such statements to be made and reported almost without comment in the press of this country, as were made at the "America First" meeting, should give pause to those who think that the problem of world fascism will be liquidated with the collapse of Nazi Germany.

As a matter of fact, Washington knows quite clearly that fascism is fighting to survive in the hemisphere of the Americas.

Fascism is subsidizing the mean little venom-peddlers of the Mairtz and Smith species. In one great Latin American country at least, fascism is in control of the government.

In Argentina anti-Semitism has become official. Anti-Semitic movies of the type Hitler promulgated are being publicly shown. Recently Col. Juan Peron, Argentine vice president and the power behind the throne of the Farrell military clique, has been talking in exactly the language with which Hitler sought to obtain endorsement before the war.

Like Hitler, Peron has urged the arming of Argentina to the hilt, he has sponsored the coordination of Argentine industry in a plan for military supremacy of his country and he has proclaimed that internationally might is right.

Bulwark Against Communism

Most recently Peron has taken another characteristically Nazi line by proclaiming fascist Argentina as the bulwark against communism in this hemisphere. Hitler too proclaimed himself the bulwark against communism in Europe, and appeasers, British and American, backed him.

From Argentina as a center, the same infection is being spread throughout Latin America. In Ecuador recently, anti-Semites distributed leaflets charging that an Austrian non-Jew who had been appointed director of food supplies to curb rising prices and food shortages, was a Jew and guilty of "Jewish provocations."

For Americans it is important to recognize one inescapable fact: that fascism and Jew-baiting are inseparable. Even in Italy, where some harbored the illusion that fascism could exist without anti-Jewish acts, Jews were eventually ousted from their jobs, robbed and maltreated. With the passing of fascism in Italy that dishonorable page in Italian history will be revised.

But in this hemisphere the relentless struggle has begun. The forces of Nazism and fascism are struggling for survival. They are at work in the Americas. In Latin America they constitute a grave future problem for the United States Government. In the United States they are a fanged viper which must be crushed underfoot.

No Jewish Children Left in Europe is Fear

See End to Jewish Life In Europe! Nazi Aim Wins

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LUBLIN — There are virtually no Jewish children left in liberated Poland, the correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency established here this week. Among the approximately 1,000 Jewish survivors in Lublin and the vicinity there are only ten children. Six of them were found at the Majdanek camp.

Practically no Jewish children have been born since the occupation of Poland by the Germans. Of the Jewish children registered among the survivors here, there is only one child born since the outbreak of the war.

The destruction of the Jewish youth by the Germans is looked upon by the Jewish Committee here as one of the chief obstacles to the eventual development of revived Jewish life in Poland. It is pointed out that while ten or so years from now the Jews who survived German extermination will either be old or verging on middle age, there will be only a handful of Jewish young men and women, such as the ten in Lublin, and even they may prefer to emigrate from the country in order to forget the places where they lived through so much horror and where their parents and relatives were killed.

Seeks Office; Says He'll Support Jewish Palestine

By H. W. BIERHORST
NEW ORLEANS, LA. — The local American Palestine Committee announced this week that James Domengeaux, candidate for the House of Representatives from the Seventh Louisiana district, has signified his unequivocal support of the resolutions pending in Congress which call for the reconstitution of the Jewish commonwealth in Palestine as proposed by the Zionist organization.

Mr. Domengeaux resigned his seat in Congress early this year and joined the army, from which he has been medically discharged. He is seeking his old seat.

German General Admits Maidenak Slaughter

MOSCOW — The Soviet press this week published a letter by the captured former German Commander at Lublin denouncing the infamous Maidenak murder factory and calling on all soldiers who were under his command to testify "about the unheard of crimes which occurred in the extermination camp of which they have knowledge."

The letter was addressed to the Red Army Command by Lieut. Gen. Hilmar Moser, commandant of the 372nd Feldkommandatur at Lublin. He admitted that, to his knowledge, hundreds of thousands of persons had been killed.

Lafayette Girl Gets Pinup Title

CHICAGO — News that she has been chosen "Music Lovers Pinup Girl" of the warship, USS Cebu, now on a mission somewhere in the Pacific, has been received by Miss Ida Hartman, concert pianist, of Lafayette, Ind. A few months ago, members of the crew of the USS Cebu heard her in a recital at the Chicago Service Men's Center. Now she has received a V-mail request for her photo, together with the announcement of the honor.

Lt. Mal A. Schweig and wife, the former Shirley Anne Cohen, are now living at Vincennes, Ind. Lt. Schweig has been transferred from Alliance Air Base, Neb., to George Field, Ill.

Soviet Okehs U. S. Delegation to Poland

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK (Spl.) — Following a cabled invitation received from Dr. Emil Sommerstein, member of the Polish Committee of National Liberation in Lublin, the American Federation for Polish Jews announced today that it is making preparations to send a special delegation to Poland in order to initiate large-scale emergency relief measures on behalf of the surviving Jewish population in the areas already liberated from Nazi occupation. The cablegram, addressed to the Federation, told of the Soviet Union's consent to the sending of the delegation and declares that "there is need of immediate direct relief especially for old people, children, sick and undernourished. We are in want of food, clothing, medical supplies, assistance in the rehabilitation of economy," the message states.

On the fifth anniversary of the outbreak of the war, Tel Aviv marked the lifting of the last black-out regulations with streets brightly illuminated by floodlights. The lights were last used in June, 1940, on the night before Italy entered the war.

Back in 1921 we started business serving a handful of grocers and restaurants. Today we not only cover the entire city, but also include outlying districts and our bread is served by leading restaurants, grills, hotels, clubs and other places. Quality was the keynote then. Quality is the keynote now. Quality has built Kraft's South Side Baking Co. into Indiana's Largest Bakers of Fine Specialty Breads. With more people asking for Kraft's products and more places serving it, it is only logical that we should continue to expand our plant facilities. This new addition will enable us to maintain the high quality of our products, and the efficiency of distribution on a scale large enough to meet the greatly increased demands for our baked goods.

The power of the greatest Navy in the world, our own two-ocean fleet, rests in large measure on its backbone—the Battleships of the Line. They displace approximately 35,000 tons and cost up to $70,000,000. We have something like a score of these huge ships in the Atlantic and Pacific.

Eight huge battleships are under construction and more are contemplated. To finance these modern goliaths of the sea it is necessary for every American everywhere to buy more and more War Bonds. We can do it if everybody does his share. Invest at least ten percent of your income every pay day to help your country go over its Bond Quota. U. S. Treasury Department

Committee Opens
Scientific Fight
on Anti-Semitism

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK.—The extension of its program of scientific research and experiment in the extent and nature of anti-Semitism in America, study of the measures that are being applied to combat it and new experimentation with tests for the effectiveness of these measures was announced today by Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, president of the American Jewish Committee, in making public the appointment of Dr. Max Horkheimer, director of the Institute of Social Research at Columbia University, as research consultant in domestic defense for the American Jewish Committee.

"One of the world's outstanding social scientists," said Judge Proskauer, Dr. Horkheimer and a special staff of sociologists, psychiatrists, political scientists and economists will seek to develop a workable hypothesis for anti-Semitism upon which can be built a civic protective program for American Jewry that will be scientifically valid and the basis for a more effective and psychologically sound workaday program for our practical public relations experts. This procedure," Judge Proskauer pointed out, "is urgently needed in the problem of inter-group relations just as so-called 'scientific charity' was needed 30 or 40 years ago to make the profession of social service a successor to the good intentions of the Lady Bountifuls of that era."

Swimming Schedules at

Lylybell Committee Acts

WASHINGTON, D. C. — With the avowed purpose of "unifying the American Jewish community behind the full implementation of the Balfour Declaration," the newly established "Committee on Unity for Palestine" has launched a nationwide educational program primarily designed to clarify Zionist issues to non-Zionist Jewish circles. Dr. Felix Levy of Chicago, veteran Zionist and outstanding Reform Jewish leader, is serving as chairman of this new Z. O. A. Committee, while Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld, of Omaha, who has just completed a nation-wide tour on behalf of the Committee and is actively directing its work, is its Vice Chairman. Membership of the Committee includes outstanding Rabbis and laymen from all segments of American Jewry.

Referring to the specific tasks undertaken by the new Committee, Rabbi Lelyveld maintains that "the simple justice of Zionist aims has too often been obscured by emotionalism and controversy. We intend to present the facts of the Zionist case in accurate and temperate terms to that section of the American public which has never been properly approached in the matter."

ONCE MARSH LAND—What is being done with the waste-lands of Palestine, by Jewish initiative is shown by the above photograph made on what was once marsh land. Returns from agriculture on Jewish National Fund lands have grown since the beginning of the war from $2,400,000 to $12,000,000, it was announced.

Rabbi Lelyveld reported that local Unity for Palestine Committees have already been organized in 112 communities.

Jewish Congress To Petition UNRRA Meeting

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK—The World Jewish Congress this week announced that it will "present the Jewish case" in a memorandum to the forthcoming session of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration which will open in Montreal on September 15. The summary of the "Jewish case" to be presented outlines the following points.

1. That the Jewish problem be treated as distinctive of all others, since the Jews were singled out as victims of brutality everywhere in Nazi-dominated Europe, and since the number of displaced Jews is 5 times larger than that of Poles, 11 times that of Belgians, 13 times that of the French, 3 times that of the Greeks and 140 times larger than the number of displaced Norwegians. Approximately 90 per cent of the Jewish survivors of Europe are displaced persons.

2. That the Jews should be represented at the UNRRA Councils as observers and should attend the meetings of the standing committees on Displaced Persons, Health and Welfare. That UNRRA should have Jews on its staff to perform the relief work in Jewish communities.

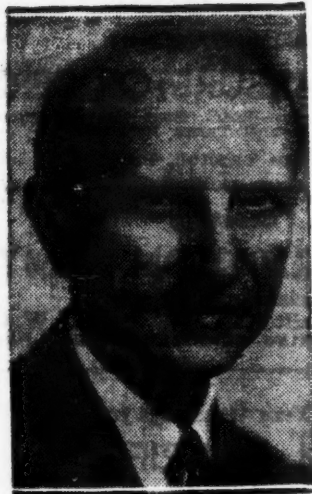

3. That displaced persons of enemy or ex-enemy nationality who were victims of the Nazis because of racial, religious or political persecutions should be taken care of by UNRRA and assisted in their return, repatriation or re-settlement, even if their forced displacement occurred before the formal outbreak of the war.

Nazis Listed Names of Non-Jews Only

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LUBLIN—The names of most of the 1,000,000 Jews exterminated at Majdanek and other camps probably will never be known, since it has been definitely ascertained that the Germans kept no list of their Jewish victims. Lists were kept only of the executed non-Jews.

Eire Will Take 500

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—The Government of Eire has agreed to admit 500 Jewish refugee children from German-occupied Europe, it was learned here. It is also reported that diplomatic representatives of Eire in Berlin are continuing their representations for the release from concentration camps of Jews who are nationals of Latin American countries.

HERE AND THERE

In case you overlooked it: Homer Maertz, who at the Gerald-K. Smith for President convention introduced the resolution to sterilize Jews, is the very same Mr. Maertz who was the leader of the Dearborn Crusaders and the Chicago Silver Shirts . . . We are interested to learn that Jewish parochial schools are increasing in numbers throughout the United States . . . The development reflects the growing tide of anti-Semitism and of Jewish opposition to religious release time in public schools . . . Now it has been revealed that the Nazis ransacked Heinrich Heine's tomb in the Montmartre Cemetery in Paris . . . They dug up Heine's casket and threw it on the rubbish heap . . . And the street named after Heine had its appellation changed to the moniker of some Nazi bigwig . . . De Gaulle has promised to restore the tomb and the street . . .

LISTEN HERE

Guess whom the grapevine has in full command of the virtually defunct Luftwaffe now? . . . Why, none other than General Erhard Milch, honorary Aryan by grace of Adolf Hitler—who may be using him as a springboard for the wall that it's the Jews who are causing the current defeat of Germany by the Allies . . . Which reminds us that Harry Hershfield has sent a solemn warning to the Fuehrer, to the effect that the handwriting is on the Westwall . . .

READER'S GUIDE

The publication of the late Professor Ismar Ellbogen's "A Century of Jewish Life" by the Jewish Publication Society of America has aroused heated controversies . . . His chapter on Jewish life in Soviet Russia is full of misstatements, and charges the Soviet Union with pogroms which were instituted by the enemies of the Bolshevik regime . . . These "facts" were culled by Professor Ellbogen from a Jewish year book . . . Don't miss Albert Maltz's "The Arrow and the Cross" and Robert Pick's "The Terhoven File" . . . These books, just out, are two very interesting novels with Nazism as their main theme . . . Maltz's volume is a masterpiece . . . Howard Fast's best-selling novel, "Freedom Road," may be a Broadway offering soon . . . Maxwell Anderson is said to be working on its dramatization . . . ABOUT PEOPLE

Did you know that the idea of the Army-Navy "E" award to war industries, originally just a Navy award, is the brainchild of the Navy's Captain Lewis L. Strauss? . . . In civilian life Captain Strauss is a banker and president of New York's Congregation Emanu-El . . . This isn't as irrelevant as it sounds, for he confesses that the coveted award is based on the good old Sunday School gold star principle . . . Congratulations to Walter Hautzig, young refugee from Vienna, on winning the 1944 Town Hall Endowment Series Award for young musicians . . . Walter is a pianist . . . Hollywood producer B. P. Schulberg is planning a business trip to Madrid—not because of any abandonment of Franco's fight against democracy, but because of El Caudillo's cessation of his fight against the Hollywood screen product . . . Only 6,000 Belgian Jews Left Out of 85,000

PARIS—Of the more than 485,000 Jews who lived in Belgium prior to the outbreak of the war and the approximately 85,000 Jews who lived in Belgium there are only 6,000 survivors, most of them women and children, it was disclosed here by Jaque Albron, a Jewish member of the Belgium underground movement, who arrived here this week on an undisclosed mission.

Jewish Groups Join U. S. Collection for UNRRA

WASHINGTON—Director General Herbert H. Lehman of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration this week announced that the churches, parishes and synagogues of the United States have responded to his request for an emergency collection of used clothing for distribution in liberated areas of Europe.

Mrs. Joseph M. Welt, president of the National Council of Jewish Women, wrote Mr. Lehman that her organization, which will serve as the co-ordinating agency of all Jewish participation in the collection, "accepts this assignment and pledges the all-out effort of our 65,000 members throughout the country." She reported that the Council has secured the support of the following groups: The Central Conference of American Rabbis, the Rabbinical Assembly of America, the Rabbinical Council of America, the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada, The National Federation of Temple Synagogues, the National Women's League of the United Synagogue and the Women's Branch of the Union of Orthodox Congregations of America.

The week of Sept. 24 has been set aside for the collection.

The first formal reference to Jews in Ireland was in 1232, when Henry III of England, in appointing a treasurer and chancellor of the Irish exchequer, gave him custody of Ireland's Jews.

Joseph Capateiro, a shoemaker, was one of the 15th century travelers whose overland journeys helped the Portuguese in the discovery of the sea route to India.

TOO YOUNG TO KNOW THEIR NAMES;
HOW THEIR RELATIVES WILL BE TRACED

By VICTOR M. BIENSTOCK

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

At dawn, just a few days ago, an Adriatic coastal steamer slipped into a south Italian port and disgorged on the quay a human cargo of 800 Yugoslav child refugees who had lost their parents and families. Allied relief workers who rushed to the port to take charge, soon discovered that 208 of these children were too young even to know their family names and could not be identified by the older children.

These tiny refugees, now awaiting transit to one of the camps in the Middle East, represent only one infinitesimal part of the gigantic tragedy of Europe's lost and dispersed peoples whose plight will be one of the most difficult of all postwar problems.

The International Red Cross at Geneva and the allied agencies which expect to bear the brunt of this problem agree that there will be no less than twelve million men, women and children dispersed in foreign lands, far from their old homes. Many of them separated from their families for years and not knowing whether wives and children, mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters are alive or dead. Estimates of the expected total run as high as fifty million.

This number includes the millions who were forced to flee before advancing armies, the other millions whose homes were destroyed and who had to seek sanctuary elsewhere, the millions whom the Nazis conscripted for forced labor in Germany and every corner of Europe, the millions who were herded into concentration camps or driven into exile for racial and religious reasons and the families of hundreds of thousands of men from enemy-occupied countries who escaped aboard to fight in the Allied armies and have had no word of their kin for years.

A Huge Job

To reunite these families, to return children to their parents, to reestablish contact between refugees and the relatives and friends who can help them rebuild new lives, will prove one of the most taxing and complex jobs in the postwar world.

The International Red Cross and allied relief agencies have already begun on it. At Geneva, the International Red Cross is building up a central card index of all the displaced families in Europe, with names of those registered, their addresses, the names of the relatives sought and all other information necessary to enable the tracing of missing persons and the reuniting of families. It will take a long time to complete, but thousands of families, though they have not yet been reunited physically, have been able to discover where their members are and to have contact with them by mail.

The Allied Control Commission in Italy has established a record bureau to list all foreign refugees in liberated territory and the names of the family members they seek. It already has listed about 5,000 displaced persons of 53 different nationalities, about one-third of whom are Jews. Its staff of 30 "Bloodhounds" is now handling about 1,000 queries a month, many from relatives and friends in the United States.

The work is slow and difficult. Many refugees, reports Lt. Col. Thomas Parrington, controller of the Bureau, are afraid to give information about relatives in occupied territory for fear that attempts to communicate with them may jeopardize their safety. So the Red Cross posters in four languages—English, German, Italian and Yugoslav—Put up in every refugee center in Italy, promise specifically that "No contact will be made with your relatives in German-occupied territories until they are free and under Allied protection. There is no danger for them, therefore."

Many Have Assumed Names

One big difficulty in tracing refugees, Col. Parrington points out, is the fact that many of them have been living in Italy during the past year under false names and with false identification papers, often with the connivance of Italian police officials who helped them elude the Gestapo.

Another problem is raised by the fact that as the Germans retreated to the north of Italy, they moved back a large number of internees to camps in axis-held Italian territory. While the record bureau has been able to establish that many of these people were alive six months ago, there is no indication today of their subsequent fate.

People in the United States anxious to trace relatives and friends among the refugees in Italy have to make their inquiries through the American Red Cross or the U. S. Army Civil Affairs Branch (G5). Their queries are routed through to the record bureau in Rome. A search is made of the records. If the person sought is registered, the query is forwarded to him so that he can answer it personally. If he is not listed, the bureau "Bloodhounds" get on the job.

Never Give Up

"No case is ever marked 'closed,'" says Captain Clayton Triggs of Los Angeles, Deputy Controller of the Bureau. "If we haven't got the record, we keep looking and try every possible source of information. We make a card out recording the inquiry so that if the person is recorded later, the inquiry is answered."

Capt. Triggs was formerly Director of the Los Angeles Relief Administration and later American Red Cross delegate to Iceland. He doesn't find his present assignment a cut and dried job handling statistics.

"Every case is different," he says. "There's nothing routine about the work at all. Of course, we find a good many people through our records, almost automatically. In other cases, we have to do a lot of detective work."

"After being clothed and fed, what people want most is news of their family. You simply have to see the reaction of a man when we finally locate him and give him news of his family. Or when we tell a mother her lost daughter is alive and well."

"We had one little case right here. We registered a woman in the Feramonte camp. She had been separated from her daughter and had been told the girl had been killed."

"A few days later in registering the refugees at a camp near Bari, we found the daughter. She had been told that her mother had been executed. They were, naturally, overwhelmed with joy. You can't describe their emotions when we succeeded in reuniting them."

Many Sources Used

Data for the record bureau comes from a variety of sources. A. C. C. officials collected lists of internees from the various detention camps throughout Italy. Their regional officials found other information at the police stations and prefectures. This formed the basis. Tracing of the individuals listed, records of transient camps and other centers, brought the index up to date.

Officials of the record bureau admit that it is by no means (Continued on page 19) complete. They think that there still are some thousands of foreign refugees in Italy not yet registered with them, but they hope to get their files as complete as is humanly possible. Duplicates of their index cards go to Geneva for incorporation in the master index of all Europe which the International Red Cross is compiling.

When the Allied Control Commission decided to establish this Bureau to trace foreign nationals in Italy, it borrowed Col. Partridge from the Foreign Affairs section of the British Red Cross and invited the American Red Cross to participate in the work.

The A. R. C. did not accept the invitation and the United States subsequently designated Capt. Triggs as Deputy Controller of the Bureau.

Similar organizations, it is expected, will be set up in other liberated areas to carry on the same kind of work. One will be set up in France in the near future at the request of the French authorities. International Red Cross officials and representatives of other Allied governments have been studying the set-up here and the manner of operations as pointers for the operation of similar bureaus in other countries.

Capt. Strauss Gets Legion of Merit

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
WASHINGTON — Capt. Lewis L. Strauss, prominent American Jewish leader who is now serving with the Navy, has been awarded the "Legion of Merit" for outstanding services to the Government of the United States," the Navy Department announced.

Capt. Strauss is a special assistant to Secretary Forrestal. The citation accompanying the award said that "by his sound administrative ability, Capt Strauss has rendered valuable service to the Navy Department and to the country in the readjustment phase of the current war."

Says Paper Shapes,

Editor
Jewish Post
Indianapolis, Indiana
To the Editor:

We are enclosing our subscription to The Jewish Post.

Though outlanders, we have had the Post follow us from Boston to New York. It has done such a remarkable job in keeping us informed on what's going on in the world of Jewry that we'd feel lost without it.

Not only has The Jewish Post kept us abreast of Jewish news but it has broadened our vision of Jewish affairs. You have blasted the myth that the Anglo-Jewish press can be only a social medium with gratuitous advertising, by turning out a paper that not only reflects the news but also shapes and creates opinion. More power to you!

Yours sincerely,
Joseph Sawyer.

In urging the printing of family greetings in the special Rosh Hashonah editions of local Anglo-Jewish papers, The Jewish Post has been as guilty as other publications in destroying a beautiful Jewish custom. When personal cards were customary, the greetings of the season had a warmth and pleasantness that even the most elaborate published greeting cannot possibly have. Most readers of The Post can remember fondly the tray in their homes on which greeting cards from friends and relatives piled up during the holiday season, of course the papers didn't and don't stop families from sending cards, but they offer an easy substitute.

In announcing the family greetings, one Anglo-Jewish paper stressed their "smartness and economy." They may be both, but at what expense. It is perfectly proper for large organizations to extend greetings to their memberships through the Anglo-Jewish press, as do the various business houses and professional men. But for the family, the only proper way is a personal card.

BACTERIA KILLING UNITS GIVEN TO HOSPITAL

Gifts by Oscar Banr and Benjamin Blumberg have made it possible to install a number of bacterial units in the main refrigerators and surgery rooms of the Union Hospital, Terre Haute, making it the first hospital in the state to be so completely equipped with these lamps which have proven effective in killing bacteria.

TERRE HAUTEANS TAKE TO AIR

SDT GIRLS BRING HOME THE CHOCOLATES

The Sigma Delta Tau house at Bloomington was well supplied with chocolates this week, as in SDT tradition, prospective grooms present the house with boxes of candy. Every sweet-tooth should be satisfied, since four of the girls, June Gole, Lillian Nathanson, Sylvia Cawn and Anne Gold are flashing engagement rings this year!

Joins WAC to Hasten Brothers' Return

Miss Anna Weiss daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Weiss this week became the fifth member of her family to enter the services of our country. With four brothers overseas, one of them a war prisoner in Germany, she decided that becoming a WAC was one way to hasten their return. Cpl. Sidney Weiss was captured in Tunisia; the others are Pfc. Ervin in New Guinea, Sgt. Arthur, in Italy and Pvt. Leon in France. Her two sisters, wives of soldiers, are living at home for the duration. They are Ethel Quarnstrom recently married to Pfc. Seymour Quarnstrom, now overseas, and Mrs. Ruth Gluck whose husband Pfc. Allen Gluck is in the signal corps at Robins Field, Ga.

Roths Celebrate Anniversary Perforce

Although Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Roth did not intend to celebrate their twenty-fifth anniversary because their two sons in the army could not be present, their friends decided otherwise. Taking matters in their own hands a very sizable group of relatives and a few friends surprised them last week. The following night most of the same relatives gave Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Roth a surprise house warming in their new home.

December Wedding to Unite Agnes Itkin, Seymour Kaplan

GARY.—Rabbi and Mrs. Hyman Itkin of Chicago have announced the engagement of their daughter, Agnes, to Seymour Kaplan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Kaplan, Gary. Miss Itkin is a graduate of Herze Junior College. The wedding will take place Sunday, Dec. 17.

MARTIN MARK Attorney for Plaintiff SHERIFF'S SALE

By virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the Superior Court of Marion County, Indiana, in cause No. A-99823 wherein Jasper Taylor, Plaintiff, and Michael E. Howard et ux., Defendants, requiring me to make the sums of money, as provided for in said decree, with interest, and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on FRIDAY, THE 6th DAY OF OCTOBER, 1944, between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of Marion County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate in Marion County, Indiana.

Lots 7 and 8 in McKee's Sub-division of one hundred fifty (150) feet off of the north end of lots 12 and 13 in the Peru and Indianapolis Railroad Company's South Addition to the City of Indianapolis, as per plat thereof as recorded in Plat Book 13, page 79, in the office of the Recorder of Marion County, Indiana.

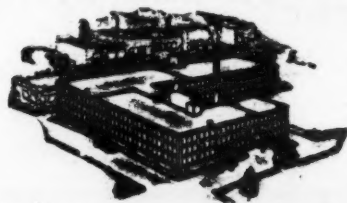

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree with interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree. Said sale will be made without relief from valuation of appraisement laws.

OTTO W. PETIT,
 Sheriff of Marion County,
 September 1st, 8th and 15th, 1944.

ROSH HASHONAH MEANINGS EXPLAINED BY THEOLOGY PROFESSOR AT JTS

By Max Arzt

The author of this article is Assistant Professor of Practical Theology at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. He is the former president of the Rabbinical Assembly of America.

ROSH Hashonah addresses us with a distinctive vocabulary and introduces us into a unique realm of discourse. Its dominant motif is one of solemnity and awe. In the blowing of the Shofar, the characteristic rite of the day, we hear the shrill alarm and warning of the Tekiah. There comes to us the tremulous Teruah blast of impending danger and the wailing SHEVARIM note of heart-rending agony. We are summoned into the presence of God who is seated in the heavenly assizes on a high and lofty throne. The Book of Remembrance in which every man's deeds are recorded is opened. The record is sealed with the imprint of every man's hand. The angels, trembling with fear, declare, "Behold the Day of Judgment." A mysterious adversary, SATAN, assumes the role of KATEGOR (prosecuting attorney) indicting man and calling for devastating retribution. In our prayers we reflect on the creatureliness of man, on his evanescent and transitory existence—"Man's origin is dust and he returneth to the dust. He obtaineth his bread by the peril of his life. He is like a fragile potsherd, as the grass that withereth, as the flower that fadeth, as a passing shadow, as the wind that bloweth, as the fleeting dust and as a dream that vanisheth."

It is the purport of these sombre meditations to make us cringe before our Maker in utter contrition, to induce us to acknowledge His sovereignty and thus to win a favorable decision of life and hope by the practice of Repentance, Prayer and Righteousness.

Our age is one in which terms like sin, judgment and repentance have fallen into desuetude. We have almost forgotten the language of religious expression. Yet our intuition is deeper than our understanding. Somehow we sense, though we do not fully comprehend, that which is of abiding good in the mood and meaning of Rosh Hashonah. We flock to the synagogue in numbers so large that space has to be reserved in advance. We may avow throughout the year that we are not pious, yet on Rosh Hashonah we manifest an intuitive quest for religious experience.

Why We Go To Services

What actuates us to come to the synagogue is something deeper than a consciousness of kind. For of all the high moments of the Jewish calendar, of all the significant dates of the year, Rosh Hashonah is most deficient in particularistic tone and tenor. It marks no decisive event in the history of our people and revolves about no central personality. Rather it speaks to us in moral and universal tones, stressing the failings as well as the aspirations of all humanity. We can distill something of supreme significance and of singular relevance out of the poetic and mystic fancy that pervades the pages of the Mahzor and permeates the observance of the Days of Dread.

For Rosh Hashonah brings into bold relief the true character of our earthly nature and cautions us against that which debases our life and brings schism into our soul. It points the way to moral regeneration and purposeful living. It carries a message of redemption for a world in travail and a heartening hope of recuperation to an ailing humanity.

The liturgy of Rosh Hashonah is centered around the basic weakness of our human nature, the capacity to sin and the tendency to moral depravity. The Yezer Hara, the evil impulse, is identified as man's invidious enemy. Being invisible, he snipes at us in treacherous fashion. If offered no resistance, he degrades man below the level of the beast, and effaces the divine image in which he is made. He drugs men into selfish complacency and deprives them of their will to freedom.

To our forbears this adversary was so real that they often personified him. They called him Satan and equated him with the angel of death. Satan was to them a vicious foe occupying territory in the soul of man and working havoc with increasing ferocity unless expelled by herculean will and iron determination. The Shefar sounds the siren calling the people "like warriors in the day of battle to arm against the evil that resides within man."

Danger of Sin Realized

Written large in the hallowed literature of Judaism is this recognition of the danger of sin and moral deterioration. The doctrine that man was formed in the image of the Divine was counterbalanced by the realistic warning that the heart of man is deceitful, bring subject to processes of spiritual disintegration. Judaism does not endorse the notion that man is instinctively good and that progress is inevitable—a doctrine which was so widely taught during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. It sees in human depravity an element of our nature against which we must always be on guard. The underlining of sin is not an obsession of primitive and undeveloped mentalities. It is a realistic appraisal of the ever-present danger of man's reverting to barbarism and bestiality. Our generation is witnessing the fullest and most tragic realization of this menace.

Judaism traces the origin of sin to the denial and defiance of the majesty of God. Man becomes a slave to his passions when he fails to recognize the sovereignty of the God of Justice, Loving-kindness and Truth. He achieves spiritual freedom only when he acknowledges the Kingship of God. In the words of Judah Halevi, "He alone is free who is a servant of the Lord."

The synagogue service of Rosh Hashonah is in the nature of a coronation pageant in which we acclaim God as sovereign in our lives. The formal morning service opens with the intonation of the word Hamelech—the King—and a section of the Musaph service is designated as MALCHUYOTH (Kingship) prayers. Many of the liturgical hymns composed by poets of the Middle Ages carry the theme and the refrain, "The Lord is King." We are thus called upon to declare our unswerving allegiance to the Most High and to the moral law which emanates from Him as the initial step in freeing ourselves from the corrosive influence of sin and in the attainment of moral constancy and consistency.

A discipline for self-renewal and spiritual reclamation is offered in the words TESHUVAH (Repentance), TEFILLAH (Prayer), ZEDAKAH (Righteous conduct). Ere the universe was established, say our sages, God created repentance, thus offering the sinner a chance to release himself from the grip of sin. The sinner who in a process of self-appraisal and self-judgment feels weighed down with a sense of regret and remorse is assured of the possibility of moral renovation. The conscience of man needs first to be activated if he is to avail himself of the healing power of repentance. Thus Maimonides hears in the sounds of the Shofar the following appeal to the dormant soul, "Awake ye sleepers from your slumbers and rouse you from your lethargy. Scrutinize your deeds and return in repentance. Remember your creator, ye who forget eternal truths in the trifles of the hour, who go astray after vain illusions which can neither profit nor deliver."

Prayer Second Requirement

Once aroused from moral stupor, man must keep on the alert. Hence Prayer is the second requirement for spiritual recovery. Prayer endows us with the moral courage needed for resistance to temptation and for mastery of circumstances. In prayer we reaffirm the truths which make us free and utter a declaration of independence from lowly and unworthy aims.

By frequent communion with the Most High we derive stamina and strength to extricate ourselves from the realm of impurity and to attach our life to the verities that are enduring.

But noble aspirations need to be translated into norms of behavior. Hence the third element of the formula for self-renewal is ZEDAKAH, righteous conduct. Precept is not enough. Spiritual maturity is attained by him who proceeds to transmute his highest aspirations into habitual deeds of integrity, justice and compassion. Thus we are offered a plan for victorious living and a discipline leading to self-mastery and moral regeneration.

In accentuating the role of the individual and his accountability for his character and conduct, Judaism takes issue with current philosophies which avow that human personality is not only conditioned but completely determined by hereditary, environmental and economic factors. The effect of such teachings has been to discount the element of free will and self determination, to scorn ideal values as chimerical. In the Nazi system this attitude of contempt for the individual personality led to the cult of brute force, to a suppression of all human rights, and to unparalleled barbarism. In civilized circles the teaching that the individual's fate is predetermined by an inevitable "wave of the future" has led to defeatism, to inertia and to a lethargy which expressed itself in reluctance to make sacrifices for ideals.

Personal Accountability

Judaism gives primacy to the vital energies of the individual. It calls for a fresh perception of human values, for a new courage in facing life, for a rebirth of human dignity as a necessary prelude to a just society and a peaceful humanity. Once the self is fortified with a sense of personal accountability, the basis is established for "a new heaven and a new earth." Society is not an assembly of preconditioned organisms reacting blindly to internal and external stimuli, but an aggregation of individuals who because they bear the image of God are expected to exercise discretion and volition.

Such self-conscious and responsible personalities will unite in cooperative endeavor to "perform the will of God with a perfect heart." This is the burden of one of the most ancient passages in the liturgy, "And therefore impose Thine awe upon all Thy works and Thy dread upon all that Thou hast created, that all may fear Thee and creatures prostrate themselves before Thee, that they may all form a single heart to do Thy will with a perfect heart." Human cooperation to be forged by force, not motivated by the fear of God induced by an awareness of the inexorable functioning of the spiritual law. An unknown poet of the twelfth century, in winged words of enduring beauty, thus envisioned an era of universal amity and peaceful cooperation: All the world shall come to serve Thee

And bless Thy glorious Name
And Thy righteousness triumphant

The islands shall acclaim
And the people shall go seeking
Who knew Thee not before
And the ends of earth shall praise Thee

And tell Thy greatness o'er.
In the concluding TEKIAH GEDOLAH our ancestors heard the hopeful note of the SHOFAR SHEL MASHIAH heralding a Messianic era of liberation for a sore beset humanity. As a concomitant of an ideal order of justice and peace, a brighter day would at last dawn for suffering Israel. For, say the rabbis, "when trouble comes upon the world, Israel is the first to suffer and when joy comes to the world, Israel is likewise the first to sense its benefits." The holocaust of our age began with a program of fierce persecution directed at the world's most defenseless minority. By the same token, the rehabilitation of the scattered and homeless of Israel in their ancient homeland and the restoration of the rights of Jews everywhere are the sine qua non of liberation for all who are downtrodden.

A sage of the third century said, "God is not like man. Man creates with instruments that are unbroken. But God often uses broken instruments to achieve His purpose." Israel which has been victimized in every time and place has become the vehicle for the formulation and transmission of a universal outlook, a broad perspective embracing all humanity and an eloquent plea for human brotherhood. We live in decisive times when the dominion of arrogance is meeting with crushing defeat. As Jews we must band ourselves together with our fellow

Gary 'Hadassah Herald' Makes Appearance

Special
GARY.—Members and prospective members of Gary Senior Hadassah this week received their first copy of "Hadassah Herald," a three-page bulletin to be issued monthly, announcing events of the organization as well as events which concern the Zionist world.

Although the bulletin is a Senior Hadassah project, the last page will be devoted to Junior Hadassah, with Miss Eileen Simons and Miss Enid Moise as the Junior editors.

The Senior editorial staff includes Mrs. Robert Berg, Mrs. Peter Schatz and Mrs. S. J. Weinberger.

In the Service—A/S Henry Tropp, stationed at Santa Ana, Calif., is home on a ten-day furlough. This is his first visit home in 23 months. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Tropp. . . . Lt. Sidney H. Pehr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pehr, has begun advanced training at Ellington Field, Tex. Before joining the air forces, Lt. Pehr received anti-aircraft training at Ft. Sheridan, Ill. Camp Butner and Camp Davis, N. C., and for almost a year was a baker at Camp Breckinridge, Ky.

Notes—Thomas Mellam left Sept. 12 to enter the Morgan Park Military Academy. . . . Mrs. Fanny Bloom will spend the holidays in Cleveland with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Al Bellin. . . . Leo Noe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Noe, has returned home after 12 weeks with stock companies in New Jersey, to begin his second year's study at the Goodman Theater in Chicago. . . . Miss Shirley Alterwitz will enroll at the Goodman Theater in Chicago this week. . . . Mrs. Bernard Shane and son Martin of Brooklyn, N. Y., will be guests for the high holiday in the home of Mrs. Shane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Rissman. Mr. Shane is now a private stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky., having entered the armed forces in the last month. . . . Mrs. Jack Tadman has returned from a visit to Indiana University, and her mother, Mrs. Max Bobele, has returned from a six weeks' visit in Marquette, Mich. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Martin Krevitz returned Sunday from a trip to California. . . . Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Weinberger spent the week-end at St. Joe, Mich. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hirschberg and daughter Sylvia visited in Peoria over the week end with their grandmother, Mrs. M. Weinstein. . . . Miss Mildred Morris daughter of Mr. Joe Morris, is in Gary on a visit from Washington, D. C., where she is employed. . . . Miss Doris Berg and Miss Jacqueline Rodin will leave Saturday for Madison, Wis., where they will enroll in the university. . . . Miss Ruth Shipow will enroll at Chicago University Sept. 20. . . . Miss Dolly Gold of New York City has been a guest in the home of her great-aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. H. Diness.

MARTIN MARK Attorney for Plaintiff SHERIFF'S SALE

By virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the Superior Court of Marion County, Indiana, in cause No. B-2223 wherein John R. Shields, Plaintiff, and Frank Bowles, et al., Defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Eighty-four Dollars and Fourteen Cents ($84.14), as provided for in said decree, with interest and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on FRIDAY, THE 6th DAY OF OCTOBER, 1944, between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of Marion County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate in Marion County, Indiana.

Lot 7 in A. D. Krewson and others Subdivisions of lots 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18 of John Young's 1st Addition to University Place, Irvington, now a part of the City of Indianapolis, as per plat thereof as recorded in Plat Book 7, page 185, in the office of the Recorder of Marion County, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree with interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree. Said sale will be made without relief from valuation of appraisement laws.

OTTO W. PETTIT, Sheriff of Marion County. September 1st, 8th and 15th, 1944.

MERI M. WALL Attorney for Plaintiff COMPLAINT FOR DIVORCE

State of Indiana, Marion County, ss: In the Superior Court of Marion County in the State of Indiana.

No. B23680. Charles O. Nyquist vs. O'Dell Sheehan Ball Nyquist.

It is known, that on the 5th day of September, 1944, the above named plaintiff, by his attorneys, filed in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Marion County, in the State of Indiana, his complaint against the above named defendant O'Dell Sheehan Ball Nyquist and the said Plaintiff having also filed in said Clerk's office the affidavit of a competent person showing that the residence of the defendant, upon diligent inquiry, is unknown, and the defendant is not a resident of the State of Indiana, and that said cause of action is for divorce and that the defendant is a necessary party thereto and whereas said plaintiff by endorsement on said complaint required said defendant to appear in said Court, and answer or demur thereto on the 6th day of November, 1944.

Now, therefore, by order of said Court, said defendant last above named is hereby notified of the filing and pendency of said complaint against her and that unless she appear and answer or demur thereto at the calling of said cause on the 6th day of November, 1944, the same being the 1st judicial day of a term of said Court, to be begun and held at the Court House in the City of Indianapolis, on the 1st Monday in November, 1944, said complaint and the matters and things therein contained and alleged will be heard and determined in her absence.

Get Report on Greek Jews; Need Great

Jewish Telegraphic Agency

CAIRO—Twenty-five thousand Jews have survived the German persecutions in Greece but they are in dire need, it is reported here by Finance Minister Alexander Svolos.

Svolos, who recently arrived from Greece, where he was president of the Greek Liberation Committee, said five thousand of the survivors were hiding in the mountains, protected by the partisans. Many, including refugees from occupied Macedonia, joined the guerrillas.

Svolos, who came with five other leftwing leaders to participate in the new national unity government, said every trace of racialism would be wiped out in Greece after the liberation and all Greek Jews would be fully integrated into Greek national life. (There were 72,000 Jews in Greece before the war. The majority were deported to death camps in Poland or died of undernourishment and disease.)

TO BE FIRST TO PLAY IN PARIS—Yehudi Menuhin, famed Jewish violinist, has left for Paris where he will be the first internationally-known performer to play in the French capital since it was occupied by the Germans, it was learned here this week. This is in accordance with an informal agreement between the violinist and Gen. de Gaulle made in London last year. Menuhin will first tour army installations in England and northern France before proceeding to Paris.

Relief Problem in Europe Shapes Up; Look to U. S. for Rehabilitation Funds

Must Get Aid From Abroad, Drive Leader Says

By RAYMOND A. DAVIES

JTA Correspondent in Russia
LUBLIN—A Jewish relief committee to organize aid for all surviving Jews in the liberated part of Poland has been established here. It is headed by Dr. Shloima Herszenhorn who is also the head of the Jewish department at the Polish Committee for National Liberation which is recognized by Moscow as the temporary Polish government.

In an interview with this correspondent Dr. Herzenhorn stated that the Polish Committee for National Liberation has voted 100,000 zloty—about $20,000—to the new Jewish relief body for immediate aid for needy Jews. A house at 8 Rybna Street has been made available as headquarters for the relief committee and plans are being considered for the restoration of the system of Jewish co-operatives which existed before the outbreak of the war and were supported with funds received from the Joint Distribution Committee.

Need Clothing Badly

The hope that an American Jewish relief delegation will shortly come to liberated Poland was expressed here this week both by Dr. Herzenhorn and by Dr. Emil Sommerstein, the 61-year-old Zionist leader and member of the Polish Committee for National Liberation. "The need among the surviving Jews is great," Dr. Sommerstein told me. "We must get relief from abroad, especially clothing, by airplane, if possible. Most of the 100,000 surviving Jews have nothing to wear. They also need medicine, machinery, tools and all kinds of help to return to normal life. What does the maintenance of 100,000 Jews mean to their brethren in the United States who came to the aid of millions of Jews in Europe before the outbreak of the war?"

Many Jews are now registering daily with the Jewish relief committee here, indicating that more Jews survived the German occupation than seemed possible a month ago. The overall figure, however, is tragically small. The main problem, at present, in addition to registering the Jews, is to do whatever is possible to assist them to rebuild their shattered lives.

Retraining Necessary

The major problem, from a long-term point of view, is retraining the surviving Jews so that they can earn a living. There is also the problem of elderly men and women who are no longer employable. For most of them the best solution would be their emigration to relatives in the United States, Palestine, Great Britain and South America, where they could spend their remaining years away from the horrors which they have suffered, Jewish leaders feel.

On the whole, the situation of the Jews in liberated Poland shapes up pretty much as follows: The Jews are not helpless, but are in dire need and require assistance. The new conditions which will prevail in Poland will undoubtedly make it possible for them to live a better life, but what is needed is aid in weathering the difficulties of the first few months.

In the last 18 months, 4,100 Yemenite Jews have arrived in Palestine, while only 9,000 came in the previous 23 years. About 1,500 additional Yemenite immigrants are stranded in Aden under miserable conditions awaiting permission to embark for Palestine.

$1,000,000 Drive Set For Warsaw Jews

Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—A million-dollar drive to organize relief for Jews in Warsaw immediately after the liberation of the Polish capital was launched here yesterday by the American Council for Warsaw Jews at a mass-meeting held at the Hotel Commodore

Jewish Agencies In Europe Function Again

Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—The American Committee of Ose, Jewish Health Society, this week received a cable from its representative of Switzerland stating that Ose offices have resumed their activities in Paris and in Bucharest.

The Paris office is headed by Dr. Minkovsky.

The office of the Ose in Bucharest, the cable said, is now engaged in placing 1,400 Jewish orphans in children's homes. The children were returned from Transnistria and are to proceed to Palestine at the first opportunity. Dr. Jancu, president of the "Save the Children" organization is the head of the Ose office in Bucharest.

All local Selective Service directors have been notified that Jewish registrants wishing to observe the High Holy Days may be delivered to induction stations either before or after the dates indicated. Similar responses were received from the Departments of War and Navy indicating that their Jewish employees will be granted High Holy Day leaves upon request.

FOR VICTORY

For a Happy Postwar America

WINNING THE WAR must be the No. 1 Job of all of us until victory is ours and our boys and girls return to their homes.

To assure our nations that victory, the efficiency of office holders in local, state and national government is more important than ever.

AFTER THE WAR our returning soldiers will want to come back to the communities and the America they sacrificed so much for and they fought so hard to save. Let's make it worthy of them. Jobs for discharged veterans and war workers; rehabilitation, reconversion, will be No. 1 problems.

Let's preserve the Republic. Let's make it worthy of the returning veterans. For a sound and happy postwar America...

Heart Attack Fatal To Hyman Goldberg

FT. WAYNE—Funeral services were held in Chicago Wednesday for Hyman Goldberg, who died Monday, Sept. 11 of heart failure. Mr. Goldberg a native of Chicago, had lived here for many years and was an employee of the Fort Wayne Tailoring Company. He was a veteran of World War I, a member of American Le-secretary of Local No. 146, Amalgamated Clothing Workers. Surviving are his wife, Amanda, three children, Donald, David and Marlene, all of Fort Wayne; four brothers and two sisters. gion Post No. 47 and recording Andre Gustav Citroen, Jewish automobile manufacturer, was known as the "Henry Ford of France."

150 Soldiers Served

A delicious dinner was served to 150 members of the Armed Forces at the USO-JWB Club last Sunday. The committee in charge included Mrs. R. N. Greenberg, Chairman, and Mmes. M. Olshan, B. Silberman, S. Silberman, S. Weinstein, L. Berger, Sam Cohen, Abe Epstein, L. Wolf, Gus Dee, and Mrs. Berman. A number of other individuals contributed financially toward the meal.

A committee from the National Service Club of the Workman's Circle will serve refreshments at the social hour following services at Billings General Hospital and Fort Benjamin Harrison Friday night. Mrs. Brodsky is chairman of the committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wolf, 5202 Washington Blvd., are in Shreveport, La., visiting their son, Lt. Myron (Bud) Wolf who is at Barksdale Field, La.

A Kiddish Cup has been donated for use at the Billings General Hospital Chapel by Miss Rebecca Dodrowitz. The Torah used at the Chapel has been loaned by the Knesses Israel Congregation.

What Overseas Experience Has Done to the Jewish G.I. Told by Chaplain Morris Kertzner

This warm and moving message from Somewhere in Italy by Chaplain Morris Kertzner, who is on leave as director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at the University of Iowa, was especially written for the Anglo-Jewish press as a Rosh Hashanah letter.—THE EDITOR.

YOU ask me what overseas experiences have done to the Jewish G. I. Perhaps I can tell you a little about it.

Of course you've heard that exposure to danger has brought about a spiritual revival—a return to religion. "Foxhole Tshuvah" has been the subject of many dissertations and dramatic productions, but those who look upon the broader meaning of religion would agree with our prophets who considered faith based on fear as less than inadequate.

The Jewish soldier has to some extent followed the universal trend: witness the use of the miniature Mezuzah as a charm and an amulet. But overseas there is a healthy sign that the Jewish soldier is more likely to ask for a JWB prayer book or a Bible. At Fort Dix, on the other hand, the Mezuzos were most popular with the Jewish inductees.

Palestine Center of Interest

The spiritual growth of the overseas G. I. has tended towards a greater interest in the Jewish people than in the Jewish faith as such. On the Anzio beach-head I never ceased wondering at the upsurge of Zionism among a large group of men, most of whom had no Zionist background, no Zionist propaganda on the beach-head: nothing in their environment to stimulate them directly to think in terms of Palestine. Some discussions were conducted under the noses of our "Long-Tom" guns, all of them within enemy shell-fire range, and many of them on the eve of a "big push," yet invariably the first question in the discussion was: "Rabbi, tell us what the future of Palestine will be." It would not be an overstatement to say that the Jewish-consciousness of the men has tremendously heightened in the midst of war and its travail.

One of the most gratifying experiences of the Jewish chaplain overseas is the work of the Christian chaplain in taking care of the Jewish needs in his outfit. It is inspiring to find in every regiment and battalion a Southern Baptist from Texas or a Catholic from Brooklyn, organize and arrange for a Minyan, cajole and persuade the Motor Pool to get transportation for travel that sometimes amounts to 100 miles for the round trip. You would be delighted, incidentally, at the ease with which the word Minyan falls from the lips of chaplains and their assistants. One of the latter, a Chinese boy named Tom, used the word with the facile grace of a Mesivtah alumnus. Commanding officers, prodded on by these truly Christian chaplains, have gone out of their way to help the Jewish men. Officers back home have a lot to learn from their overseas brethren in this respect.

Doctors Turn Rabbi

One of the best kept secrets of the war, from a Jewish point of view, is the remarkable work of

WAR REFUGEE BOARD SENDS HIRSCHMANN TO SEE THAT BULGARIA KEEPS WORD

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
CAIRO—Ira A. Hirschmann, United States War Refugee Board representative in Turkey, is preparing to leave for Bulgaria to check on whether all anti-Jewish restrictions have been removed, it was learned here this week.
Mr. Hirschmann is waiting only for an armistice to be signed here between the Bulgarian government and the Allies. It is known that one clause of the armistice terms commits the Bulgarian government to grant equal rights to all citizens. It is to ensure that this clause will be carried out that the WRB representative will go to Sofia. The Bulgarians have already issued decrees abrogating the anti-Jewish laws and restoring the franchise to all citizens.

The clause barring racial or religious discrimination is felt to be of utmost importance, since it will set a precedent for other armistice terms, especially with Hungary and Rumania.

In the five-year period since the outbreak of World War II, Jews in 4200 communities throughout the United States contributed a total of $82,000,000 to the United Jewish Appeal for Refugees, Overseas Needs and Palestine.

No Need to See Rabbis—Vatican

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—Vatican authorities have refused the request of Palestine's chief rabbis for an audience with the Pope to discuss measures to save the Jews of Hungary, according to a Jerusalem dispatch appearing in the London Jewish Chronicle.

A Vatican spokesman said that all measures suggested by the chief rabbis have already been carried out and nothing further can be achieved at an interview with the Pope. They added that a papal legate will visit Palestine shortly, at which time the rabbis will have a further opportunity to discuss the Vatican's role in rescuing the Jews.

60 Years of Jewish Farming in U. S. Marked

VINELAND, N. J.—The oldest Jewish farm settlers in this country, the surviving pioneers who founded the South Jersey colonies 60 years ago, together with refugees from Germany who took up farming in the same vicinity a couple of years ago, turned out here this week to celebrate sixty years of Jewish agriculture in America.

The mystery surrounding the fate of several thousand Jews deported from Athens by the Germans last year has been partially solved with the disclosure here that 1200 of the deportees were executed at the Lublin's Majdanek camp.

Studies Request To Probe Smith

Jewish Telegraphic Agency

WASHINGTON—Senator Theodore Green of Rhode Island, chairman of the Senate Special Committee to Investigate Campaign Expenditures, announced that a closed session of that group has considered a request by the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League for an investigation of the anti-

Jewish resolution adopted this week by the convention of the American First Party. He did not indicate what action, if any, was taken by the committee.

The Anti-Nazi League's plea was voiced in a telegram sent by Prof. James Sheldon, its chairman, charging "misuse of the party and other electoral processes." The group also appealed to Attorney-General Francis Biddle and Gov. Harry Kelly of Michigan for a probe of the American First activities.

The Fabulous Miss Lowe

Soldiers Make a Bee Line for Her Office

By CONSTANTINE POULOS

JERUSALEM (By Air Mail)—Two U. S. Army officers—one of the Persian Gulf command the other the Middle East command—are talking. "When you get to Palestine be sure..." one of them starts to say. "Yes, I know," interrupts the other, "I look up Ruth Lowe, the American Red Cross girl at the Jerusalem YMCA."

Throughout the Middle East it's the same story over and over. The story of the fabulous "Miss Lowe" who helps American GIs get their laundry done, guides American generals through Arab Bazaars, and arranges for Lily Pons to get Vitamin B Complex injections while on a USO tour.

The Holy City is one of the top tourist attractions for American soldiers in the Middle East, and this 25-year-old ex-school teacher from the United States, helps make it informative, safe, most pleasant and sometimes inexpensive for them.

American soldiers arriving in Jerusalem make a bee-line for the third floor of the YMCA building to find "Miss Lowe." And they start shooting questions at her immediately. Normally all they want her to do is: find them a reasonable place to stay, tell them where to eat and what to eat, tell them what to see and how to see it, arrange dates for them if possible, help them buy souvenirs and then help wrap and mail them, and usually help them get transportation back to their station.

And Miss Lowe comes through. That's why the legend of Ruth Lowe—the one-man Red Cross club—is spreading out over the whole Mediterranean area. Now she gets letters regularly from GIs in Corsica and Italy, as well as Algiers and Teheran, who have heard about her from other American soldiers. They enclose money orders so she may buy a Bible or a Rosary for them. She does. She hasn't had a request from a GI that she hasn't been able to fill or a question that she hasn't answered.

Eighteen months ago she volunteered in the United States for service with the Red Cross. She's been overseas fifteen months, all of them in the Middle East. Now she's anxious for service with combat troops.

Actually, in strict bureaucratic terms, Ruth Lowe is a Red Cross tour director. This means her job is to arrange sight-seeing tours around the holy land for American soldiers on leave. That she does, handsomely. And for good measure she throws in at least a few thousand extra services for the boys.

Can't Overpay for Trinkets

She has led a successful holy crusade against the local "Commission Guides." Now the native guides—carefully selected and watched by Ruth Lowe—cannot steer American GIs into souvenir stores from which they will get a rake-off. They must take the soldiers only to the stores on Miss Lowe's own "on-bounds" list.

Not only that, but when the GIs buy rosaries, Bibles, pottery, silks, and embroidered evening jackets for ladies while on the tours, Miss Lowe always insists on knowing how much they paid. And if she thinks they were overcharged she takes the purchases back herself and gets a reduction.

Ruth Lowe's average day starts out to be quiet and orderly. She organizes her regularly scheduled GI tours, checks her accounts and calls the roll of her guides. Then, about 9 a. m., the steady stream of khaki starts pouring into her office.

There are dozens of small parties to be sent out on sight-seeing tours separate from the large group affairs. She must not only discuss, advise and map out all these little tours, but she must determine which guide is best qualified for a particular job, and then she must engage a taxi for the trip.

Anything Can Happen

Sooner or later, an American general walks in and wants to know how soon he can have a uniform pressed. A GI wants her to sew a couple of buttons on the shirt he's wearing. Another GI has spent all his money on souvenirs; so now he wants Miss Lowe to convince the YMCA that he is a good risk and will certainly pay his bill when he gets back to his base. An American war correspondent wants to know where he can get American pipe tobacco. There are always a few soldiers who come back from a tour and want to argue Sombody should say something in praise of Representative Charles M. LaFollette of Evansville.

Rep. LaFollette, although a freshman in the House, has forged a name for himself as a fighting liberal with a courageous heart. That he has been in the forefront in the fight to save the Fair Employment Practices Commission is only incidental. Rep. LaFollette is for the bill because he understands that democracy must work for everyone, not just the few or the privileged. There are other legislators that feel as Mr. LaFollette, but there is this one characteristic of the Indiana Congressman that sets him apart. He will not stand for opportunistic considerations. What is right is right, he believes, and on this high plane he makes his decisions.

Here is the copy of the letter the American Council for Judaism dispatched to the radio stations of the nations. In addition, I understand that Rabbi Morris Lazaron, of Baltimore, has written letters to members of the American Palestine Committee:

"We are informed that the Zionist Organization of America or one of its affiliates has approached or is approaching your radio station for a series of broadcasts dealing with Zionism.

"No doubt you know that this subject is a political issue on which there is considerable controversy. Our organization, composed of Americans of Jewish faith, is opposed to the Zionist program. There are countless Americans of Christian faith who are similarly opposed.

"We are confident of your desire to maintain your station in the public interest; and are accordingly requesting you to please notify us if you are providing time for this broadcast, and to accord us an equal amount of free time to present the other side.

Sincerely yours,
ELMER BERGER.

The American Council for Judaism, Inc.

I hear that after the representatives of The Protestant went to Muncie to consider the situation caused by the publication of the anti-Semitic paper, X-Ray, they sent a pledge form to all that city's ministry, which calls for a fight on bigotry, etc. Twenty-eight pastors signed this pledge, I am told.

Here's a bit of verse Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt sent me, and I'm glad to give it wider distribution:

PROPAGANDA PIE

By Leola J. Harris

Take age-old lies—choose carefully,
Lard well with doubts and fears,
Inject a joke with malice spiced and sprinkle well with jeers.

Use equal parts of hate and spite,
Set neighbor contra neighbor,
Pit white 'gainst black, and race
'gainst race,
Stir capital and labor.

Biblical Garden Ready for Opening

Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JERUSALEM—A "Garden of the Prophets and the Sages" containing the flowers, plants, shrubs and foliage mentioned in the Scriptures, the Talmud and Jewish literature, will shortly be opened on 60 acres of land in the Judean hills west of Jerusalem. The "garden" is the culmination of a life-long effort on the part of Dr. and Mrs. Ephraim Ha-Reuben, who have been studying the botanical information contained in Biblical and Talmudical literature and collecting specimens for 40 years. Dr. and Mrs. Ha-Reuben were in the United States in 1925 to secure support for their project.

If filling lacks in potency,
There's nothing you can lose
By adding slurs on Catholics,
On Negroes and on Jews.

Pour into discontented minds,
Stir in a bit more fright,
Let mixture ferment gradually
(Do not expose to light!)

Next, take a dig at our Allies,
Bemoan our "misplaced trust,"
(Use hot air for a stretcher—
This pie takes lots of crust).

This recipe's been handed down
By countless generations
And bears the Seal of Approval of
The Benighted Backward Nations.

In addition to his booklet, "The Sanctuary of the Home" Rabbi Albert G. Minda, of Minneapolis, has compiled also a small booklet on "Temple Etiquette and Procedure". Some of the headings about the authenticity of some of the Biblical places they have visited. The newcomers want a place to stay. Those who have been around a couple of days complain about bedbugs. Then there's the mail-order business.

"I want to help the GIs and this is the best way," is her only comment about her work.

But she's not a stiff, prim schoolmarm. She's always gay; even when she doesn't feel like being gay. She likes to talk about the days when she used to go along on long two- and three-day tours with the soldiers all through Syria, Lebanon and Jerusalem.

"I've been tossed out of all the night clubs between Egypt and Syria," she boasts. "Visiting these various cities we would try to get into a night club. Thirty soldiers and me. If we had enough brass (officers) with us, it worked. But many times, it didn't, and I went out on my ear with the boys. Well, it was fun, and good training for the time when I get thrown out of night clubs in Berlin."—Copyright, 1944, J.T.A.

to their Jewish leadership, have been cited for bravery and gal- lantry: Captain Arthur Shain- house, of New York, (the Silver Star); Major Samuel Perlman, of Chicago (citation for bravery at Salerno); Captain Morris Gold- smith, of Brooklyn (Bronze Star). In many cases, the Jewish doctor who has assumed spiritual lead- ership in his regiment, has dis- covered a new enthusiasm for his heritage in the process of stimu- lating others to come home to Judaism. Speaking of home, I could write pages about the Jewish boy and his family. Most of the men overseas are unmarried, and home to them means mother and father. The Jewish mother has a unique position in their hearts, a fact which some of us chap- lains have learned somewhat rusefully. When we ask a boy for his family address, in order to inform parents of his presence at services, he sometimes gives only his mother's name. A few weeks later, our mail-box is scorched by a letter from an irate rather, who justifiably laments:

"Nu, what's the matter with me? Don't I count too?"

In the short space of a few months I have received hundreds of letters from grateful parents, some philosophical, some poetic, al of them sincere outpourings of gratitude. The chaplains over- seas have all received hospitable invitations from homes in 40-odd states to visit them after the war. The theme of the letters is uni- formly this, to quote from one of them: "It thrills me to know that men like you are helping my boy and every mother's son to receive spiritual guidance and strength in their hour of need."

Disturbed by Bias at Home

The Jewish soldier here was profoundly disturbed by letters and newspapers from home which focused attention on the rise of prejudice in our land. I have seen a Jewish officer in a state of melancholy, after reading "Under Cover." With better perspective, many of us feel that the prob- lem has not become more acute, but our awareness of it has. The forces of democracy have be- come more articulate, and more likely to bring out into the open the insidious forces we have too long tolerated. Recognition of a disease, while disturbing to the patient, is in the long run the most helpful solution to his ill-

We expected, of course, to find new evidences of inter-faith friendships and fellowship, based on the sharing of common dan- gers. It would be a miracle if "fox-hole buddies" weren't welded together by their experiences. In a clearing-station the other day, a medical officer beckoned me to speak to a wounded Jewish boy, who was suffering from nervous prostration. The youngster sobbed out his story to me. The wound in his leg didn't bother him: "I just saw my buddy die right in front of my eyes. Gus wasn't Jewish, rabbi, but I loved him like a brother."

And young Jews are discover- ing hidden walls of courage and matchless bravery in their fellow- Jewish soldier. Some of them had cynically disbelieved that easy-going and wise-cracking Benny from the Bronx could do what he did. During the big push, his leg was blown off by a shell, and he called to a few of his lads in the company: "I know what the score is, boys. . . . I know I won't make it . . . promise me you'll take care of yourselves . . ." and to the sergeant: "Watch out for mine boys, sarge . . ."

That story was related to me by one of my congregants, as we stood in the lobby of the Rome Synagogue, talking of the price we had paid to get there. His voice rung with pride, but his eyes were brimful of tears. Some day the two of us would like to visit Benny's family in the Bronx, to pay tribute to a great Jewish soul—to an American, who though he had not yet mastered the unaccented language of America, had still caught a true glimpse of its spirit. I stood at his grave a few days ago, and repeated the El Moleh as I faced the Mogen David, which was bedecked with an American flag on Memorial Day.

A chaplain's heart is often heavy, especially when tragedy hurts itself close to home. On three occasions, the Graves Registration Officer informed me of men who were found with Bibles in their hands, in which I had inscribed "L'chayim v' livrochov . . ." The life which God in His inscrutable wisdom has seen fit to grant them is that of Olam Haboh: they will surely live on in the hearts and lives of us whom the Almighty has spared. Their is a true immortality.

That's all for now, except this. When our folks at home repeat the Yizkor on Yom Kippur, please add a little prayer for Benny, for Meyer, for Hymie—yes—and for Gus, too.

Share your Party-Line—If everyone on a party-line would co-operate—make thoughtful and sparing use of the telephone—then everyone would have good service. It's another way to "share and share alike" on the home front.

Most families have Party-Line Service—The increase in party-line telephones is a wartime necessity. At present some 4 out of 5 families who have telephone service are on party-lines. Existing telephone equipment has been made to serve more people, because the materials needed to build more lines have gone to the fighting fronts.

Some Neighborly Suggestions

- ✓ Explain the proper use of party-line telephones to children.
- ✓ If you have several calls to make, remember to allow a little time between calls.
- ✓ Avoid interrupting when someone else is using the line. With a dial telephone, listen for the "all clear" hum-m-m.
- ✓ Keep conversations reasonably brief—someone may be waiting to call out—or in—on your line.
- ✓ Work out your party-line problems with others on the line.

A Day in the Life of a Combat Chaplain: A Moving Report to the J.W.B. by Chaplain Jacob W. Out

I AM taking good advantage of a lull in our operations to give you some notion of what I have been doing. Since coming to France I have been with my division in the line. Before the advent of the past days, I often wondered what combat would be like, as have not all who have faced the ordeal of fire.

I have found, like Captain Ralph Ingersoll in "The Battle Is The Pay-Off," that much of what we do closely resembles our operations in the Tennessee Maneuver Area, with important exceptions. The exceptions are so important, however, that they overwhelm every other thought. For the actors have changed, even though they go through the same motions, and men sweat, die and suffer. Men must change, indeed, must strive to make an adjustment in the midst of pain, misery, destruction, and death.

Our old division commander often told us at officers' meetings that "battle is confusion." Battle is, of course, more than confusion; but tumult, turmoil and shock are at hand on every side challenging, assaulting, often breaching, the discipline and organization that training attempts to construct. The presence of death and confusion ruptures attitudes and flows over the dikes of canalized mental processes. Reading thousands of pages and accounts of the horrors, the brutalities and the vast despair of war, has not the power of meaning conveyed by sitting at the bedside of a dying soldier tossing in his delirium and pleading for life! or reading the burial rites for those who were in all respects like brothers or attempting to calm the pounded nerves of a soldier razed and stupefied by exhaustion and fear.

In all this we are very small, minute atoms seeking respite, praying for strength and courage. To the individual there is no pattern in strategy, only the incongruities of sound, flashes poundings and ever-present disorder. There is no exulting; all is depression. One can only say: "What a price! God give us the strength to make all of this count."

I cannot record casualties. I cannot describe details concerning the fighting. But no one can prevent me from saying that the fighting spirit and devotion to duty show by the Jewish troops of this command cannot be equalled by any similar group in any sector in this theatre. Verbal commendations authenticating this fact have come from all sources, NCO's, officers and even from ranking officers commanding battalions.

Regular Services Impossible

When troops are in the line, especially when encountering the obstructive topographical conditions prevailing in this sector, and particularly with the comparative sparsity of Jewish men in a given squad, platoon or company, it is almost impossible to conduct regular religious services. Men are always in motion, and when immobile, they disperse and dig in deep.

WHAT OVERSEAS EXPERIENCE HAS MEANT FOR THE JEWISH G. I. IS EXPLAINED

Congregating for a service is "herding" and very risky. Enemy mortars present a constant peril, while the German 88's when "zeroed in" can plant a shell in our back pockets. Under the circumstances, the services for front line troops must await rest periods or moments when the unit is in reserve. It has always been possible, however, to conduct services for troops in the rearward areas where effective camouflage can be more effectively maintained and where there is less chance of immediate enemy fire. The response to these services has been unusually good.

Being the only Jewish chaplain in our corps, at least at this writing, I have ministered to as many units without benefit of chaplain as has been humanly possible. In addition, I have been conducting a regular Friday evening service at one of the now famous beaches for an Engineer Specialized Brigade whose operations in this war have been historical. This brigade is actually a task force. Its mission is to maintain and protect the beach and to discharge the cargo from ships. They fight the battle of logistics 24 hours a day. Different elements, QM battalions, Port battalions, Engineers, Medical units and others are amalgamated into one force to achieve the mission. Troops in this brigade landed on D Day and continued disembarking until way after that momentous date. They have seen plenty of action and labor as hard as any troops in France. Despite the fact that fully 50 of this group is always at work, 150 men attend regularly Friday evening services. Next week this group will be augmented by the attendance of the naval groups on duty off the Normandy coast.

Exhaustion Centers Explained

One unusually fertile field for pastoral work and an abundant ministrations is the work in the rest and exhaustion centers. These installations are established to treat troops evacuated from the scene of battle because of disease and exhaustion and because of other neuropsychiatric disturbances. In many cases these patients are more seriously wounded than men who have sustained gunshot or shrapnel wounds. The latter have a psychological butress in the fact that the wounds are visible and the blood has been let. There is no "conscience," no feelings of guilt for deserting comrades, no social stigma in the military society. Everywhere there is applause and sympathy. The award of the Purple Heart in fact crystallizes the common attitudes of the community. To add to this support, whatever fears may lurk in the mind are quelled by the knowledge that evacuation to the rear medical installations will remove the patient from the battle line. This doubtless, in turn, contributes to the air of bravado and heroics so often displayed by casualties at clearing stations and other aid sites.

On the other hand, the exhaustion case, despite a real attempt by medical officers to increase understanding and sympathy for this type of battle injury, is oft times accused and shunned by his comrades. Many times his injury is not readily apparent. Guilty feelings may cause him to brood still more, especially when he may be stigmatized. He has nothing to show for his injury, nothing to prove that he left the front honorably; and he relives in his mind again and again the tumultuous days spent in action. Some religionists will object to the view of a service as a kathartic. But it does so function, and it does the job so well that the consulting psychiatrist of our division exhaustion center has made it a point to schedule regular religious services for the men. Worship has had a quieting and soothing effect on troubled minds.

One evening, Jewish, Protestant and Catholic services were conducted at a single rest center, the center which is the first and most complete of its kind in military history. Of all the patients, and the number was considerable, only three failed to attend at least one of the services, and those three were asleep under the influence of drugs. At this same center, one Jewish officer, a paratrooper who had jumped on D Day, admitted that this was his first service in over two years.

Services Interrupted

The Luftwaffe is perhaps being held in reserve or maybe no longer exists as a real force. But those few courageous fliers, who do venture forth to snoop about, apparently are attracted by our congregations. One Friday evening at the beach, 150 troops sat on the ground in a semi-circle formed about my pulpit, an incongruous contrivance fashioned out of two wire spools salvaged from a signal unit and a gasoline can taken from my jeep. At the climatic point in my sermon Jerry flew over and it looked as if we would all wind up in the fox holes, slit trenches and concrete dugouts in the area. In good fortune, however, a single ack ack burst sent the intruder down in flames, and we settle back to enjoy the rest of the liturgy.

Two days later, while conducting a service for exhaustion patients in a green house (minus the greens and the house), another Jerry came diving immediately overhead, twisting and turning, trying to escape 3 Thunderbolt fighters on his tail. The clatter of 50 caliber machine guns completely broke down one lad of 19, who crumpled in a corner and sobbed. The others frantically grasped at brick walls seeking to escape. I quickly called for the hymn Eyn Keloheinu in an effort to prevent complete panic. As we closed the hymn, the sounds of the dogfight echoed from the distance; but by this time the men were composed and attentive. Addeum: Jerry was shot down.

In addition to the activities outlined above, the following also comes within my sphere of duty.

NEVER BEFORE DID FORCES OF EVIL HAVE SUCH AN OPPORTUNITY, RABBI SAYS

Joyfully, we enter upon a season filled with dynamic significance. Rosh Hashonoh is, in itself, always a dramatic occasion. This year it is bursting with dreams, hopes and fervent prayers about to be born into reality. There are no words to express the magnitude of events impending. Even as the pen writes, history marches with seven-league boots. When you read this, the war situation will not be as at the moment of writing. It will be better, far better.

For this first time in years, we enter a happy Holy Day season. True, it is a qualified happiness, restrained by our fond thoughts of those who have gone to the wars. But even as we pray for their return, we can sense the imminence of a definite answer to our prayers. The new year may well see it realized.

"The Lord reigneth, let the earth rejoice." These words of the Psalmist, echoed in the Shofar service, have been vindicated. The Lord reigns! Evil cannot triumph! Never before in history did the forces of evil have such an opportunity as they had from 1940 to 1942. With superiority in every tangible, material asset—trained forces, arms and armor—they failed. They were strong in everything but spirit. Those who were superior in strength of spirit survived every onslaught, and now they prevail. "No weapon that is formed against Thee shall prosper. . . . This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord." Thus spoke Isaiah. This history has proved again, in this greatest of all wars.

In humility, let us acknowledge the sovereignty of God, and as we stand upon the threshold of a New Year, reverently invoke His benediction: May God bless the whole household of Israel with security and fruitful life. May God bless and keep in His care our loved ones, wherever they may be. May He grant life and health, the joys of family and loved ones, the pleasures of fine friendships, the dignity of self-respect, and the warm satisfactions which come to those who do justly, and deal charitably, with all men. May He write us, and all mankind, in the Book of Life.

I conduct daily burial services at the corps cemetery for the Jewish dead of many divisions. Much time is spent at the division clearing station where I can minister to the wounded as they pass through. I visit evacuation and field hospitals daily to attend to the needs of the sick and wounded. These duties consume a great deal of time, and when there is a pause, a voluminous correspondence with anxious parents, wives, and relatives must be carried on. At this writing alone, I have sent 108 of such letters and have received 40. This is also an important work and one very much appreciated by the parents at home.

In my sojourns I have met Chaplain Brody who is with the 50th Medical Regiment. I know that Chaplain Lieberman is in the vicinity as are my old friends, Chaplain Tepper, and Chaplain Frank, the latter a Harvard Chaplains' school classmate. I understand that Chaplains Dicker and Lefkowitz are not far away. Some day we hope to convene, but with the pressure of the push going on each day, no one can plan on any thing.

Differs With Report

I should like to close with one other comment. I have heard one chaplain report that preaching is not necessary in Normandy for the men understand the full implications and the "whys" of their battle.

Finding this a difficult assumption and completely untrue from where I sit, I must disagree. I find that ideologies, grand designs and noble ambitions utterly dissipate in the savagery of infantry tactics. Purpose and logic lies with more ordered minds. What rushes through confused minds—but disjointed thoughts, incomplete images, feverish longings, spasmodic depressions and the great driving urge to live? Yes, to live, life and everything it has ever meant to an individual, to return and breathe again.

These are dominants leaving no room for other considerations. Sharp pain, horrendous sights on every side stun the mind. Few report the intense discouragements which beset men in the maelstrom of travail. Men pity themselves, curse at their plight, exorcise the stupidity of the idea, meanwhile losing sight of the reasons for their fight. And so, at every occasion—some picture presented understandable in the simplest terms, some vision, must receive constant iteration and delineation. The supreme purposes must always be held to view. Furthermore, all responsible public opinion must be based on the availability of accurate and substantial information. The dissemination of such information, its discussion, to combat against plain moping and stagnation, is a cardinal duty of the chaplain. The chaplain must, indeed it is vital to every principle which is now being tested, fight also the war of ideas and he must mobilize his congregation at the same time. Preaching? Yes, by all means! And what a text!

—In Kfar Giladi, Palestine, there was recently unveiled the above sculpture of Giladi, one of the first Cholutzim, Palestine pioneers, after whom the collective settlement in Upper Galilee was named. WHAT CHRISTIAN GROUPS ARE DOING TO PROMOTE GOOD WILL TOLD

By WILLARD JOHNSON

Assistant to the President of the National Conference of Christians and Jews

THE year 5705 will be a happier year, both for Jews and non-Jews, than was 5704. The Nazi yoke of domination and brutality will be lifted from Europe and the hearts of freedom-loving men everywhere. We shall be taking steps during this new year for the building of a world of such elemental justice that future Nazis will not receive a hearing. It cannot fail to be a happier year.

To be sure, the after-effects of Nazism will last long. They will run deep into the blood stream of the world for many years and the long years of war will leave a cynicism and disillusionment with many people not easy to overcome. But God is on the side of men of good will and they are on His side. The Jewish people have known that for centuries, despite deep travail, and they along with those of other creeds must keep that faith burning bright and clear if we are to bring our world back to decency and justice.

Sometimes those of us who struggle for freedom and justice feel that we are a helpless minority. Such is not the case; common people the world over are surging to mastery of those forces which have held them in subjection for far too many centuries. If this were not our conviction, especially at the beginning of new years, indeed all would be lost.

Assuming Responsibility

At this critical juncture in world affairs, it is important that American Jews should know that American Christians are rapidly assuming more and more of their proper share of responsibility for the strengthening of democracy at home and for the building of a world of organized cooperation and security. If anyone has doubts about this statement, look at some of the evidence.

A little less than a year ago, some 150 of the most important religious leaders of the nation Protestant, Catholic and Jewish affixed their signatures to a Declaration on World Order outlining the principles of a just and lasting peace. Fundamental in that declaration were pronouncements on the rights of minority groups anywhere in the world. But the religious bodies were not content with the release of that statement. They have been actively engaged in making it an integral part of their study and action programs ever since. Religious groups, large and small, have been devoting major attention to it all over the nation. Religious journals have given it lengthy consideration. Nationwide educational groups within all bodies have dedicated themselves to its extension and fulfillment. Without question, it is the most important single joint statement of its kind in the history of the nation, perhaps in the world.

Beyond Resolutions

Similarly, Protestant and Catholic bodies have given unprecedented attention to the subject of inter-group relations during the past year. Most important of all, they have gone beyond the passing of resolutions against anti-Semitism and other forms of bigotry. They have learned that tolerance will not be reduced merely by protesting against it, even by meeting it head-on. They are now employing proven educational procedures, in a positive way, to build understandings and mutual respect based on knowledge and cooperative efforts.

During the past year, forty Protestant denominational boards have devoted an entire year to study of the topic, "The Church and America's Peoples." Educational materials, hard-hitting yet understanding. Special national commissions were appointed by many bodies to give comprehensive attention to this subject which now is an established part of religious education of America. Scores of youth conferences held during summer vacation periods included the topic in their agenda, often with rabbis teaching classes and leading forums.

Catholic Book Help

A comparable development took place within the Catholic Church. The Commission on American Citizenship appointed by the hierarchy in 1937, including both Protestants and Jews on its board as well as Catholics, this last year published the first six volumes of its "Faith and Freedom Readers" for parochial schools. Interwoven in the citizenship materials of these attractive volumes are superior sections devoted to inter-religious and inter-racial amity and respect. In the Seventh reader, for example, is a section on "Common Aims of Protestants, Catholics and Jews." Already more than half the parochial schools of the land have adopted the books as standard materials.

Following the lead of Pope Pius XII in calling on Catholics to work with "all men of good will," many American Catholic leaders have given increased collaboration. The Jesuit order has given major attention to inter-creedal cooperation. Archbishop Robert E. Lucey and the six other bishops in Texas and Oklahoma issued a public statement commending the objectives of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

There are, of course, both Protestants and Catholics who oppose any new developments in inter-group cooperation. Some are without question anti-Semitic, but the number is smaller than one might assume by reading and listening to reports of such intolerance. Some leaders sincerely believe that the present accepted methods employed in inter-group relations are unwise or ineffective.

The overwhelming tendency, however, is toward cooperation and education for brotherhood. That trend will continue unabated in the next few years to come.

Public Schools Do Share

Public education, likewise, is beginning to devote itself to education for better human relations. Organizations such as the National Education Association and the American Council on Education (which is cooperating closely with the National Conference of Christians and Jews) have adopted programs of comprehensive textbook revision, teacher training and the development of all-school programs so fundamental that they comprise a real revolution in the field. The present generation of youngsters will be educated for decent human relations as no other group in American life has ever been.

The statewide program of inter-cultural education in Massachusetts under the leadership of the State Commissioner of Education is another example of the development one may expect to occur more and more widely.

City school systems are rapidly taking basic steps in the same direction. Springfield, Mass., is only one instance. Such cities as New York, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Denver, St. Louis, Kansas City,

WHAT CHRISTIAN GROUPS ARE DOING TO PROMOTE GOOD WILL TOLD

Des Moines and Newark are but a few instances of commendable activity.

Radio, motion picture and magazine fields are likewise beginning to assert themselves as leaders in making Americans aware that this nation is one of cultural diversity, made up of people of many backgrounds and that all of us are secure in our freedom only when all our citizens are secure.

Not to be minimized is the experience of the millions of our men and women in the armed forces who, as they live and fight together with Americans of other religions and racial groups, are learning to respect one another. Likewise, thousands of chaplains are learning new ways of working with chaplains of other faiths. These men and their chaplains are the American leaders of tomorrow. What a power for good will they they will be!

Not Overoptimistic

Readers of this article may assume that the writer is over-optimistic. Our only point is that American leaders in all walks of life are facing in new directions in terms of education for improved human relations. This is only the beginning. It is not an accomplished fact. But beginnings are important and it is significant that they are taking directions which will last on into future years and generations. They do not comprise a momentary propaganda campaign; they are an integral part of the whole educational structure of the nation. As such, they cannot fail, if they are supported by the majority of citizens who want a land of liberty and justice for all.

There will be rough days ahead, without question, for example, in the area of Negro-white relations. The period of reconversion will offer opportunities for hatreds to thrive. Our native demagogues will attempt to secure a following. But the developments outlined above, if supplemented by political integrity and economic stability, will enable America to survive these stresses and strains and take her rightful place in a world society. Certainly without them, our beloved land would be greatly endangered.

Mrs. Mary Pollack, 66, Former Resident, Dies

Mrs. Mary Pollack, 66, died Monday, Sept. 11, in Chicago at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Silverman, where she has lived for the past nine years, since the death of her husband, the late Max Pollack. Up to that time, Mrs. Pollack had lived in Indianapolis. She was a member of Knesses Israel Ladies Auxiliary and the Jewish Education. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday in the Aaron Ruben funeral home, with Rabbi David S. Shapiro and Rabbi Nandor Fruchter officiating, assisted by Cantor Sam Levin. Burial was in Knesses Israel cemetery.

Survivors are two sons, Morris Pollack, Zanesville, O., and Louis Pollack, Chicago; two daughters, Mrs. Harry Silverman, Chicago, and Mrs. Arthur Benn, Indianapolis; three sisters, Mrs. Henry Dobrowitz, Mrs. Mollie Gerinstein, Mrs. Pearl Gerinstein, Indianapolis; a brother, Hyman Olshen, Indianapolis and six grand children.

Harry Zoss, 48, Dies; South Bend Resident 35 Years

Special

SOUTH BEND — Harry Zoss, 48, died in his home Sunday, Sept. 10 after a year's illness. He and a son Abe O. Zoss of Easton, Shop.

Mr. Zoss came to South Bend 35 years ago, and was married to Miss Fannie Friedman, who survives.

Other survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Harry Dermer of LaPorte, of Bowling Green, took place at Pa.; three grandchildren; a brother, Nathan, of South Bend; and three sisters, Mrs. Rose Platt, Chicago; Mrs. Ida Brown, LaPorte, and a sister in South America. Funeral services were held Monday, Sept. 11 with Rabbi Aaron M. Rine and Rabbi Maurice Parzen, officiating, and burial was in the Hebrew Orthodox cemetery, Mishawaka. He was a member of the Louis Sandock Lodge, B'nai B'rith of Sinai synagogue.

Solomon B. Judah ibn Gabirol, "the Jewish Plato," wrote a rhymed Hebrew grammar at the age of 20.

HOW THE SATURDAY NITE CLUB GOT ITS NEW DRESS—ASK SICANOFF AND BRESLAW

By JANE CALVELAGE

When the Saturday Nite Club Shop, where they were busy feeling materials and figuring, when in walked Mr. Bert Sicanoff, who immediately with Mr. Breslaw, began to "help" them choose. Only Mr. Sicanoff and Mr. Breslaw were looking at fancier materials than the girls had in mind! The girls were good sports, though, and decided to go along with the gag, and when they were all through they had a really beautiful selection, but it far outran their allotment! So Bernice and Harriet were beginning over again in their own bracket, trying not to look regretfully at the finery they must abandon.

It's all Bernice Kaplan's fault. She is the sponsor of the club, and she wanted to do something to make the new juke box feel comfortable (sort of like buying a new dress to go with that good-looking belt someone gave you). So they gave her some money and said Here, go buy some curtains and stuff. Bernice and Harriet Cohn quickly departed for Mr. Sanford Breslaw's Mill End and he said to Mr. Sicanoff, "Well, Bert, this is your share," and Mr. Sicanoff said to Mr. Breslaw, "Okay," and then they both said to the girls "It's all yours!" and they wouldn't take any money! And the girls, curtsying gratefully, got out of there, and this week there will be a sewing party at the Kirshbaum.

WHEREVER HE IS ALMOST, YOUR FIGHTING SON WILL GET TO OBSERVE HIGH HOLIDAYS

By PAUL KRESH

NEW YORK—In China, Burma, or India, or in some Alaskan outpost, a Jewish private may have the experience of attending a service that some chaplain will have flown thousands of miles to conduct. He will hold in his hand a prayer book that may have been shipped across an ocean in order to be in his hands at that time.

The Jewish Welfare Board has prepared more extensively than ever before in its history that Jewish men may observe those High Holy Days.

And on every front where men of Jewish faith are fighting with their comrades of all faiths to beat down, once and for all, the threat of the world's would-be conquerors, they will have an opportunity this Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur to observe these Holy

Days in the traditional spirit.

For many the traditional services will consist of but a whispered prayer—a prayer of thanksgiving, perhaps, that they can welcome this New Year on territory wrested from the enemy in France, in Italy, in the Pacific. To some, the New Year may be just a fleeting thought of home and family and New Year's observed in other times, a memory of home while coursing through the air over some enemy target or ploughing under the surface of an alien sea.

With 251 Jewish chaplains in the field—95 of them overseas—the majority of Jewish soldiers, whether in a populated area or a remote outpost in the Far East or the Southwest

WHEREVER HE IS YOUR FIGHTING SON WILL GET TO OBSERVE HOLIDAYS

Pacific, will be able to attend some service with religious supplies sent by the Jewish Welfare Board. Eight Jewish chaplains are now in Normandy, several more are on Saipan and other fighting fronts.

At army camps and at naval bases in the United States, there will be chaplains and civilian rabbis to conduct regular Holy Day services at chapels. In many instances, where military circumstances make it feasible, army and navy authorities will grant permission for Jewish men to attend services at synagogues in local communities, or even to return home on furlough and observe the Holy Days with their families.

Recorded Holy Day Services

In many communities, near army camps, families have arranged to entertain servicemen as their guests during this period.

And in some areas where there are not enough Jewish men to warrant the appointment of a Jewish chaplain, Jewish boys will still be able to gather on Yom Kippur and thrill to the voice of some great cantor singing the Kol Nidre from a transcription on the phonograph. The Board has sent a number of transcribed High Holy Day programs, recorded by distinguished cantors and choirs, to groups who have planned to conduct their own services.

To insure the arrival of supplies at points all over the globe in time for the High Holy Day period, the Board began as early as May to fill "orders" for religious supplies that came from chaplains, officers and enlisted men all the way from Alaska to the Virgin Islands and from the South Pacific to the Seine.

In Europe where the rest of Jewry will still be forced to worship in silence, Jewish men in our army will be able to sound the prescribed calls on the ram's horn in freedom and without fear, a sound that this year will seem to herald the approach of freedom for all that continent.

'Grant Suitable Liberty'

To supply these men with the wherewithal for their services, the JWB has sent a great variety of religious articles aboard—crates containing Torah scrolls, candlesticks, altar cloth, ram's horns, and hundreds of thousands of prayer books and Jewish calendars. These prayer books are slim khaki volumes that have been shipped with the full cooperation of the War Department—always extremely helpful in enabling its men to worship in their own way. The War Department has sent out orders to every branch of the armed services to "grant suitable liberty to men of the Jewish faith wherever feasible, in order that they may attend services on these days in locations nearest their 'stations.'"

A number of Jewish Navy chaplains also are overseas this year. They will conduct special services, some board transports, battleships, and other craft. Recently Chaplain R. D. Workman, Chief of Chaplains in the Navy, informed the Jewish Welfare Board: "I assure you that naval personnel of Jewish faith will have our complete cooperation in the matter of the High Holy Days."

To help breach the many miles separating parents from their sons, the Board has also arranged to prepare appropriate recordings whereby the young man away from home will be able to send High Holy Day greetings back home on a record. The Board also has supplied a large number of New Year greeting cards, including V-mail editions.

Holiday Luncheons Planned

Jewish Welfare Board workers at USO clubs have received program material and suggestions for sermons to aid them in preparing programs for groups that will be unable to attend services conducted by chaplains. Field workers have made plans to enhance the Yom Tov spirit with holiday luncheons to be served on both days of Rosh Hashonah and special "Break-the-Fast" suppers at the close of Yom Kippur. To the man in uniform thousands of miles away huddled in some foxhole under a rain of shell, or the fighter plane pilot battling the enemy in the sky, for all those engaged in battle on this occasion, there can be no religious services in the formal sense, and no supplies will be able to reach them. For them there can be no luncheons nor special suppers in USO Clubs. But this year they can share with us the feeling that can strengthen the hearts of us all this year—hope that this conflict will soon reach its end, and that next year, God willing, all may gather in their own synagogues and in their own homes with their friends and families to offer thanksgiving in a world where the sound of the ram's horn may be heard uninterrupted by the cacaphony of gunfire.

J. W. V. Head Discusses Question of Anti-Semitism of Returning Veteran

By ARCHIE H. GREENBERG

IN the new book "The Veteran Comes Back"—a most understanding and complete picture of the veteran problem and the workings of the mind of the individual veteran—Professor Willard Waller of the Sociology Department of Columbia University makes a statement that is as true as it is terrifying. He writes:

"In a post-war period, the major political force is the veteran's anger. When it has been decided whom the veteran of this war shall hate—labor, capital, radical, reactionary, Jew, Catholic, Negro, immigrant, isolationist, internationalist, pacifist, militarist, imperialist, Anglophile, Russophile—when it is decided which of these he shall hate, then it will be possible to write the political history of the next twenty-five years."

He might have added that when the trend of veteran thinking becomes apparent, you will have the answer to the question: What about the future of anti-Semitism?

Is Politically Dangerous

Dr. Waller, declaring that "the veteran is politically dangerous because he has a great deal of hatred to work off," points out that "hatred is of all the emotions the most easily transferred from one object to another" and that "many people try to tell the veteran whom and what he should hate." And the politician, he continues, "struggle for the privilege of riding this whirlwind."

These words should become emblazoned on the minds of all Jewish leaders, and should be writ in red letters in the minutes of all Jewish organizations, for the whole future of the Jew of this country rests largely upon how we Americans meet the problems of the largest veterans group in the history of the country, approximately ten per cent of our entire population, or if you are to include families of veterans, almost fifty per cent of all Americans.

I appreciate that our Jewish leaders are conversant with the problem before us, but I am doubtful that many of them have a true understanding of the minds of the average veteran. Explaining how the veteran often does "whatever he feels he wants or needs to do, to beat up pacifists and radicals, lynch Negroes, or assassinate the men who made the peace of which he disapproves," Professor Waller says:

"By making a civilian into a

Brother—you CAN do it!

It's no cinch. But...

You can lug your flame thrower through a curtain of bullets...

You can jump from a transport plane into unknown darkness...

You can plunge out of an invasion barge in the first wave ashore...

You don't say "I can't." Or "Let some other guy do it." Or "I've done plenty already." It's up to you!

The same way—we at home can buy more War Bonds. Sure—you've been buying and buying. Maybe you think you've hit your limit?

Don't tell that to the men out there doing your fighting. Now's the urgent moment to back them up with every Bond you can squeeze out cash for. Make a few sacrifices. Give up a few comforts. But get those Bonds—and hold 'em!

This time it's up to you. And you can do it!

ANTI-SEMITISM OF RETURNING VETERANS

... we have carefully cultivated his sadistic-aggressive impulses, taught him to fight and without mercy. The veteran is accustomed to direct action but not to discussion; he has a pronounced aversion to discussion. He feels intensely but not intelligently, intensely because he has suffered, unintelligently because his political education stopped when he entered the army. He is not afraid to take risks; he has been shot over."

These truths point two lessons for Jewish leadership:

1. That Jews, as individual Americans, must understand the peculiar problems of the returning soldier and must do everything in their power to see that the veteran of World War II do not fall victim to what Professor Waller calls "America's traditional policy of paying on account of veterans' claims too much, too late, in the wrong way, and to the wrong persons."

2. That in meeting the problems of anti-Semitism, and other matters of Jewish concern, there must not be timidity of approach or the substitution of discussion for action. Further, that the Jewish veterans will represent the largest single mass interest in the Jewish community and, as men who fought that democracy might live, they have the right to expect a voice in Jewish community life and organization.

Says Organization Slighted I am guilty of understatement

Philly Stations To Carry Services

PHILADELPHIA.—The Jewish Community Relations Council has completed arrangements for the nine radio stations in Philadelphia to broadcast special services and prayers in observance of the Rosh Hashonah holidays and the beginning of the Jewish New Year this Sunday evening, Sept.

Members of the Philadelphia Board of Jewish Ministers cooperating, virtually all of the broadcasts are scheduled for the evening, and each program will feature appropriate musical selections by a Cantor in addition to the Rabbi.

Illness Fatal

Miss Mae Bennett, 74

GARY.—Miss Mae Bennett, 74, died Sunday after a long illness. She had been a Gary resident for the past five years, and had previously lived in New Brunswick, N. J. and Toronto, Canada. Survivors are two sisters, Mrs. Wilson of Gary and Mrs. R. R. Baker of Toronto; a nephew, Murray Wilson of New York, and a niece, Mrs. Harry Schwerdt of Gary. Burial was Tuesday at Temple Israel cemetery. Rabbi Harry August officiated at the services.

Jacqueline Karsh to Return to Study of Ballet
Miss Jacqueline Karsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Karsh, returned to New York, Sunday, after a summer of rest with her parents. Among her appearances was that with the Metropolitan Opera Company last year. She will study under Montil, of New York City, one of the foremost choreographers who will also design her costumes for her fall engagements. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Miller have returned from a Great Lakes cruise. On the way home they stopped in Detroit for a few days. . . . Silas Lippman has returned from a three weeks vacation in Miami, Fla.

when I merely say that the Jewish veteran has not always been accorded the respect due him from organized Jewish life. There are still some benighted individuals who cannot understand why there should be a Jewish War Veterans organization; who do not realize the worth of such an organization to American Jewry as a whole. I quote again from Professor Waller: "Veterans are highly organizable," he says. And "veterans understand veterans; they need one another."

To the non-veteran this may be unintelligible; but it is nevertheless a sociological truth. It is why veterans can best be approached by veterans; why a veterans' organization will trust a Jewish Veterans group where it will not trust another Jewish group. This is the great strength and the great value of the J. W. V.

Professor Waller speaks the truth when he says that "the veteran is the ready tool of the demagogue who talks against talk and promises direct action." He points out that often "the demagogues who lead veterans are exceedingly cynical men to whom pity and humanity are abhorrent. Spenius, Matho, Catiline, Rohm, Goring, Hitler, Mussolini—there is no accident that these men have been the leaders of veterans."

6 Veterans Formed Klan

Pointing out that the original Ku Klux Klan was "first organized in 1865 by six young veterans in Pulaski, Tennessee," and that already the revived Ku Klux Klan of today is seeking to appeal to veterans through "the technique of an employment service, presumably with the cooperation of personnel directors of certain Detroit industrial plants," Professor Waller warns:

"America has been very fortunate in its veterans so far. They have raised up no Cataline and no Hitler. Their worst exaction has been a little petty graft. We have been fortunate so far, but will that good fortune continue? Let us suppose that at the end of the war the soldiers do not find their promised land. Let us suppose that some of the veterans must go hungry, must beg on the streets, must sell their Purple hearts, must wear their army uniform until it dissolves into rags. . . . If then there comes a suitable demagogue to lead these veterans and to tell them what many already believe—that politicians are swindlers and their followers born fools—if there comes a demagogue who tells them that they have been suckers and talks against talk with overpowering eloquence and he leads these sullen soldiers in a fascist crusade, may not our democratic structure, which even now totters, collapse. Will the veterans of World War II turn into Storm Troopers who will destroy democracy?"

Liberals Must Join

Professor Waller believes that the veterans "are the principle social problem of the coming years." He believes that if liberals "wish to influence veterans in the next twenty-five years, their best chance will lie in joining the veterans' organizations, helping to form their policy in free and democratic discussion." He feels that "the boy who comes back from the wars is not the same boy who went away, and the society to which he returns is not one he left behind." What might be described as his pragmatic conclusion is: "It is society's concern to remove from the path of the returning soldier any conditions that might impel him to give vent to his accumulated, unspent fury on society itself."

In "The Veteran Comes Back" (Dryden Press), Professor Waller, with the knowledge of a trained sociologist, with the insight that comes from being a veteran himself, and with the devotion to democracy that is born of his flaming liberalism, has written a book that reveals an appreciation of a country's debt to its returning soldiers, that understands the realities of problems of the readjustment of a soldier to peacetime pursuits, that comprehends the psychological changes in the thinking process of the veteran and at the same time realizes the possible threat to democracy of mob rule by veterans who have succumbed to the blandishments of an unscrupulous demagogue. It is a book that should be read by all persons concerned with the future of democracy.

FRENCH CONGREGATION IN NEW YORK MARKS FREEDOM OF HOMELAND

Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—A congregation of French Jews who fled their homeland in 1941 marked the liberation of Paris with services at the Jewish Center 131 West Eighty-sixth Street. Prayers were led by Rabbi Simon Langer, head of the congregation, and Rabbi Leo Jung of the Jewish Center.

About 300 persons attended, among them Guerin de Beaumont, French Consul General and Capt. Alexandre de Manziarly of the Fighting French Army. Five representatives of the Free French War Veterans, Post No. 1, stood before the pulpit bearing the Tricolor, the Fighting French banner and the American flag.

Mourner's Kaddish, was recited by Rabbi Langer and the congregation before the open, illuminated Ark, in memory of those who had fallen in the fight to free France's freedom.

PRIZE-WINNING POEM, "BEHOLD THE JEW," TO BE BROADCAST BY AJC OVER NBC

NEW YORK (Spl.)—The prize-winning poem, "Behold the Jew," will be the basis of a radio dramatization to be presented by the American Jewish Committee over the nation-wide network of the National Broadcasting Company from 2:00 to 2:30 p. m. (EWT), on Sunday, Sept. 17.

The poem, written by Ada Jackson, has been the recipient of two famed poetry awards, the 1943 Greenwood Prize for Poetry and England's National Poetry Prize. The radio dramatization has been written by Milton Geiger, well-known script writer.

Published recently in this country by Macmillan, the Ada Jackson poem is a deeply emotional expression of sympathy for the tortured Jews of Europe. It tells the story of Jewish contributions to civilization down through the ages to the present time.

In introducing her theme, the author meditates on the valuable role of the Jews in building the world's culture:

"And yet I think that it should be a proud glad thing to be a Jew. I am a Gentile, but there are yet names that thrill my being thro'—... In clouds they come, in flocks they come— my heart's wide cote hath room for all— yet are they past my numbering. I can but smile on them, and call the loveliest ones—

Feuchtwanger, Zweig, Yehosh, Toller, Bialik, Werfel, Heine— (Lord, here's wealth beyond earth's dull arithmetic!)

Maurois, Golding, Pasternak— the measure piles, the bin runs o'er— Ehrenburg and Sholem Asch, Proust, and many a hundred more."

The poem later turns its eloquence against the indifference of many non-Jews:

"Oh, ghastly slaughter, I agree; but still, my lamb, a Jew's a Jew. Don't wear yourself to tatters on a thankless job—

I answer you— shall England stand up, judged of men by Brummy toughs, and White-chapel? Are Glasgow razor gangs the whole that tongues can of great Scotland tell? Is America the Bowery? Nay, Nor are these men Israel.

No flock but has its spotted sheep; no race nor nation but must own some blemished sons, or if there be let that one cast the foremost stone."

The author then turns from famous names to the rank and file of Jews including those whom she has known personally:

"I will speak out as I have found. I will assay and prove the Jew as I weigh other nations—by the hearts I know, the hearts I knew."

She concludes:

"Behold the Jew, in whom I find no more of fault than lies within the soul of any other man. Thus do I cry; thus, sharp and thin, I wait wavering before the mob, I shake Pilate in another day and Christ the Jew—and left it there; and washed his hands, and turned away.

I can never leave it there. I keep silence all these things are done of me and in my name, and mine the guilt of bludgeonings and massacres—

If I speak not— if I forbear—I am as one turned murderer. It is as tho' my own hands bore the knife, the gun."

LT. ROBERT D. KAHN, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Carroll Kahn, is home on leave after having graduated from Selman Field Navigation School, Monroe, La. He was one of the top three in academic standing in his entire class.

LT. MARTIN GARFIELD, who was with the invasion forces in France, has been promoted to captain.

First Lieutenant Jack Wormser, Signal Corps, son of Mrs. Albert Wormser and the late Mr. Wormser, well known citizens of the Indianapolis Jewish community, is doing outstanding work as commanding officer of an American Expeditionary Station on an island in the Marshalls group. Before enlisting in the Army, Lt. Wormser was a producer, and a writer for the National Broadcasting Company. He is a cousin of Miss Jessie Wormser of Indianapolis and Mrs. Daniel Rosenbaum of Anderson, Ind. The men hear Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Charlie McCarthy, Fibber McGee and Mollie, all of their favorite radio programs. For the men in the Pacific, Lt. Wormser's station is doing the same kind of work. With a staff of four men, a program director, announcer, writer and technician, he runs a radio station that is not very different from radio stations at home. There are commercials, G. I., of course, and humorous, but driving home necessary information for self-preservation. There are "live" shows built around talent available on the island. A variety of great music, jive, comedy and dramatic shows, mystery and suspense, and G. I. soap operas, constitute the daily radio bill of fare. Lt. Wormser's station is one of a chain, established recently, called the Pacific Network.

HELEN ASHER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sigmond Asher, 3707 N. Meridian St., will be married to Lt. Herman Loganofsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Loganofsky, 1214 Union Street, in the very near future. There has been no announcement of the approaching wedding as the groom-elect is stationed in Fairbanks, Alaska with the Air Corps and, though expected Saturday, there is no certainty of the exact day of arrival. Rabbi Morris F. Feuerlicht will officiate at the ceremony. Helen, the bride-elect, is a graduate of Shortridge and attended both Indiana and Ohio Universities. She is the great-granddaughter of the Nathan Rheinhelmers of the olden days and a granddaughter of Mrs. Lewis Baum. A happy life to you, Helen!

MRS. AMELIA POLASKY, WITH A TWINKLE in her eye, said, "When I was in my teens—about seventeen I believe—a boy friend and I decided to take our lunch and go up White River. We rowed as far as the old aqueduct on West Michigan Street, and didn't that boat get wedged in the cross-section there! We both worked and pulled at the boat. Finally, just as it was getting dark, we succeeded in prying it loose. Imagine, no lunch, hours spent in hard work and then all worn out he said 'It's getting dark. We'd better row home. And we went!' Brave boy!"

TO ALLAY THE ANXIETY of Louis Borinstein lest his daughter Lucille and husband, Lt. Alvin Cohen, would have to go from Newport, R. I., where the Lieutenant is stationed, to Providence for the High Holy Day services, here is some information: Newport, R. I., has a synagogue built in 1763 by a group of Jews from Holland. They had been holding services since fifteen families arrived there in 1658. A torch—some claim it was brought to America by descendants of those with Columbus rests in the Ark. Washington attended services there very often. His pew has a bronze marker giving his information. Elsewhere is a bronze plaque recording that General George Washington and his tropes had been

BETWEEN YOU AND ME

By BORIS CMOLAR

Editor-in-Chief, Jewish Telegraphic Agency

Happy New Year—The coming year will impose upon Jewish organizations in this country greater responsibilities than they have ever assumed. . . . The economic rehabilitation of Jews in liberated Europe will tax the Joint Distribution Committee and other organizations to the maximum of their working capacity.

While American Jewish political organizations will be kept busy securing the complete restoration of Jewish rights and property in the countries where Jews lost them. . . . Already Jewish groups are negotiating with the State Department for permission to send delegations to liberated Poland, Rumania and other countries. . . . At the same time, Zionist leaders here expect the New Year to bring the realization of their demand for the establishment of a Jewish State in Palestine. . . . And it is almost certain that this demand will be realized, unless it meets with growing opposition on the part of those Jews in Palestine who are afraid that the establishment of a Jewish State may mean the partition of Palestine. . . . In Washington there is much talk now of the international trusteeship which is being planned for a Jewish Palestine. . . . It is understood that the British are not at all keen at the possibility of having Russia as one of the trustees. . . . Some Englishmen point out that Russia was not a member of the League of Nations when the Palestine Mandate was entrusted by the League to England. . . . Also that Russia, when joining the League later, definitely stipulated that she wanted to have nothing to do with the mandated territories. . . . Thus, it is argued, Russia is not justified in participating in the trusteeship over a Jewish State in Palestine. . . . Such a trusteeship, it is urged, should be in the hands of Britain and America only, since the former holds the mandate over Palestine, while the latter has always taken an interest in Palestine and no change can be made in the mandate without its consent. . . .

Personal Notes—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr. may address a Jewish gathering in Chicago this month. . . . When Vice-President Henry A. Wallace was on his New England tour at the end of last month, he interrupted his trip in order to come to Poland, Maine, to visit Edmund I. Kaufmann, former president of the Zionist Organization of America. . . . The memorandum submitted by the American Jewish Committee to the State Department asking that a United Nations Commission be sent to Majdanek, the Nazi "extermination camp" where a million Jews were gassed, is lauded by no other than Samuel Margoshes in an article in the Jewish newspaper The Day. . . . This is the first time that Margoshes has praised the American Jewish Committee publicly.

Labor Record—The role which Jews played in the American labor movement in the United States is ably depicted by Louis Waldman in "Labor Lawyer" just published by Dutton. . . . The book throws light on the activities of many Jewish personalities in the labor unions and on their participation in the Socialist movement in this country. . . . Himself one of the leaders, Mr. Waldman is well-qualified to write on the inside doings of labor and social. . . . Much of what he has to say is valuable because it reflects a time which has passed into history. . . . Mr. Waldman came to this country from Russia as a child. . . . He is a product of the New York East Side where he was associated with the Jewish socialist movement during its most active years. . . . For more than twenty-five years he has been fighting in many fields of social interest as a lawyer, a member of the New York State Assembly and of the American Labor Party. . . . His book, an autobiography, reflects all these fights and the results achieved.

Behind the Scenes—Now that the Jewish theatrical season is opening in New York, it will be interesting for many to know that the average Jewish theatre has about $1,000 a day expenses when it plays. . . . There will be nine Jewish theatres this season in New York, one in Chicago and (Continued on Page 52)

An Open Letter to All Student War Workers:

"We of the armed forces urge every young man and woman of pre-military age who has been filling a summer war job to return to school this autumn. Such work is important, but your education has top priority. You will serve your country best by making the most of your educational opportunities, for this is not only a brave man's war—it is also a smart man's war.

"If you plan to enter military service, you will find that a good education offers the best assurance of progress and recognition. In all branches of the service we need trained leaders, engineers, scientists and specialists. And in the years to follow victory we will need them even more, as our nation charts its progress in the post-war world.

housed there and that the Supreme Court had held its sessions there. All the trimmings in the Synagogue are bronze and the hangings a deep red velvet. It is a place of rare beauty. Before that synagogue was built, the little cemetery on the hill in Newport was laid out. Aaron Lopez, a foremost member among the original fifteen who arrived in 1658, is buried there. Henry Wadsworth Longfellow by his poem, "The Jewish Cemetery in Newport," immortalized that ancient place. Newport is a place well worth visiting. I had the pleasure of being there and hated to leave.

MRS. DAVID HOKINS of Chicago, the former Bess Valinetz of Indianapolis writes verse. The following, one of her lovely poems, epitomizes her helpful, gracious life: It is a good thought for Rosh Hashona.

My blessings are returned

With gladness I can say,
'Thy will be done,'
Knowing it means all good one in Cleveland. . . . The man who had the best financial success last season in the Jewish theatre was Maurice Schwartz. . . . Nevertheless, he decided not to have any theatre this season. . . . His place will be taken by Jacob Ben-Ami who, after a long absence from the Jewish stage, took one of the largest theatres on Second Avenue and will play with the best ensemble the Jewish stage has. . . . Molly Picon, too, is returning this season to the Jewish theatre after being away from it for quite a while. . . . She will have her own theatre, also on Second Avenue. . . . The soul of the Jewish theatrical profession is the modest Reuben Guskin, who has given so many years of his life to protect the interests of Jewish actors as the manager of the Hebrew Actors Union. . . . I was present at the annual meeting this week of the members of this union and was greatly impressed by Guskin's report. . . . It seems to me that if not for Guskin's energetic activities, the entire Jewish theatre would have long ceased to exist. . . . He is the person around whom the entire Jewish theatrical life revolves. . . . And he is very conscious of his responsibilities both to the actors, whose interests he protects, and to the producers with whom he negotiates. . . . He certainly succeeds in surmounting difficulties which no one else could face.

A lot of young fellows—and girls, too, for that matter—will have a big decision to make this fall. Wartime labor shortages have attracted 'teen-age youngsters into summer jobs. And nice paying jobs they are.

Some won't want to give up their weekly pay envelopes for the seemingly, less-attractive classroom routine. That easily-earned money will buy a lot of things that a weekly, school allowance from dad won't buy.

But after the war, times will change. It will be the well-educated men and women who will be prepared for . . . will get . . . and will HOLD . . . the better paying jobs.

Let's put more emphasis on education now. It'll go a long way toward winning the Peace . . . after winning the war.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Names of letter writers need not be printed, and will not be divulged, although the name must be appended to the letter as it reaches our office for verification as to authenticity. RABBINICAL ASSEMBLY PRESIDENT MAKE SUGGESTION TO CONFERENCE

To The Editor:

May I congratulate you on the significant service you are rendering American Jewry by your poll of the delegates to the American Jewish Conference to determine their views on problems facing that body.

I can answer your two questions very briefly in the affirmative. I do think the problems facing the United States Jewry here should be included in the scope of the Conference and I think the Conference should become a functional body and do its work under its own aegis in cooperation with established organizations.

I should like, however, to add some comments on the future policies of the Conference.

It seems to me that each national organization should be and is, basically, more interested in the cause for which it was organized than in the machinery set up to further the cause. To every sensible and sincere person, ends are more important than means. Hence, whenever a given project, sponsored by a national organization, proves acceptable to the Conference as a whole, logic would dictate that the prestige and influence of the Conference, representing 90% of organized American Jewry, be utilized to further that project, rather than keep it as a private undertaking by the group involved.

Hence, I favor a procedure by which each national organization interested in a given cause and possessing a program of implementation would submit its proposal to the governing body of the Conference. If the Conference, by majority vote, indicated its positive attitude toward the project, the A.J.C. would set about executing the elements of the program. In most cases, too, the national organization could and should supply the personnel, experience and technical assistance required, for the project, which it will have submitted for action to the Conference.

I am fully aware of the importance of maintaining the membership and strengthening the vitality of the national organizations. I am, therefore, not advocating a moratorium on their activities—but rather that the Conference cooperate with B'nai B'rith, the Zionists, the Congress, etc. in each area, and that the name of the respective national organization be publicized in connection with the given activity.

There will, of course, be projects in which national organizations ~~will~~ be interested, which the Conference ~~will~~ not be prepared to undertake, for one or another reason, such as lack of agreement with the objectives or the means proposed, the more limited character of the undertaking, etc. In that event, and in that event only, the national organization could continue its efforts in that direction, under its own aegis—which is what is happening all along the line today—with the disastrous consequences we all know, completion, duplication, mutual ill-will and frequent failure.

The approach here outlined may seem Utopian. Yet I feel that the leaders and members of the national organizations possess the requisite practical idealism and love of Israel to realize that a revitalized and united Jewry, far from injuring their cause, will inevitably lead to a regeneration of every worthwhile national organization. Wasn't it Ben Franklin who warned his generation in an earlier crisis, "Either we hang together or we'll hang separately!"

Sincerely yours,

Robert Gordis,
President Rabbinical
Assembly of America.

L'Shanah Tovah, Boys and Girls,
Happy New Year!

High Holiday Time is here. It is a solemn time. We pray for help to be worthy of our blessings. But it is a happy time too. Have you ever thought that really it is the world's birthday that we celebrate on Rosh Hashonah Eve. This year it is the 5705th birthday of the world. On the table are candles for a BRIGHT New year. Under a napkin are round challahs for a good ROUND year. Then there is a bowl of honey to dip apples and challah in for a good SWEET year, and of course everyone wears his new clothes in honor of the NEW year.

And when father makes kiddush over the festive table and everyone says L'Shanah Tovah! Happy New Year! we all hope that this birthday marks the beginning of a truly Happy New Year when peace will return to the earth for all people.

If Not Higher

(Retold from a Chassidish story by Peretz)

In the early hours before dawn, the Chassidim of Menorov gathered in the synagogue for the First Selichoth. The flickering candles lighted a scene of swaying figures tearfully chanting the special prayers for forgiveness which are recited each night for a week before the High Holy Days. All the Chassidim were there except one—the Rabbi or Zaddik as the Chassidim call their leader. He was absent from his accustomed place.

"Where is the Zaddik?" asked a stranger in the town. He was a Mithnaged, one who disapproved of the Chassidish teachings.

"Don't you know?" replied one of the congregation, "Every year, at Selichoth time, our Zaddik goes up to Heaven to intercede for us with the Almighty."

"Goes up to Heaven indeed!" scoffed the Mithnaged. "Do you mean to tell me you actually believe your Rabbi can go to Heaven and come back each night of Selichoth?"

"Yes, our Zaddik can work wonders which you would never understand," said the Chassid, returning to his prayers.

The stranger pondered the man's words. Suddenly his face lighted up. "I shall follow the Zaddik tomorrow night and see for myself whether he goes to Heaven."

The next evening when the Zaddik's household was asleep, the stranger slipped quietly into his cottage and concealed himself in a cupboard, where he could see everything that happened.

Just before midnight he heard heavy steps hurrying along the street. Soon the Shul-klopper knocked on the window shutters, calling out, "Arouse yourselves to worship the Creator. Arise for Selichoth."

The Zaddik and his family rose and started to dress hastily. The Zaddik however did not put on his Holiday clothes, the long coat and fur-trimmed hat. Instead he dressed in the rough clothing of a Russian peasant. He put an ax over his shoulder and as his family went to the synagogue, he turned the opposite direction, toward the forest. Wonderingly the stranger followed the Zaddik into the woods. He watched from a distance as the Rabbi stopped and began to chop wood. A large pile chopped, the rabbi tied the wood into a bundle and trudged back to the village.

It was still before dawn when he stopped before a poor tumbled-down hut, and knocked on the window shutter. The weak voice of an old woman called, "Who is it? What do you want?"

The rabbi entered and said: "I have some wood for sale."

"I am too poor to buy wood," answered the old woman.

"Well, take it anyway. I shall not press you for payment."

"Even if you do not demand payment, what good is wood to me? I am too weak and sick even to make a re."

"Then I shall make a fire for you," said the Zaddik cheerfully. Soon a cheerful fire brought warmth to the room. Then the rabbi straightened the hut, and made the sick woman more comfortable. He left the rest of the wood where she could easily reach it to throw a stick onto the fire. Only then did he depart for his home.

The stranger went thoughtfully home to his bed.

The next night at the Selichoth service, the stranger took his place among the swaying chanting figures in the dimly lighted synagogue.

"Well," asked the Chassid, "Are you convinced that our Zaddik goes to heaven to intercede for his followers?"

"Yes," said the stranger, "to heaven certainly, if not higher."

I Think as I Please

By MRS. CARL ALPERT

The Becker Plan

I KNOW of nothing in the annals of adult Jewish education in America which can match the tale of a young couple of my acquaintance. Well established in business, proprietors of a kosher meat market in a fairly large community, Jack and Sue Becker will next week turn over their business to another member of the family, pack their bags, and proceed to New York where they will devote the coming year to study of Jewish history, literature and allied subjects. In so doing, they will be fulfilling a life-long ambition of each, to continue the education which in their case, as in the case of so many others, was interrupted by maturity.

Though both have been voracious readers in recent years, they have felt the need for an organized course of study, such as may be obtained at any of New York's fine institutions of Jewish learning, and so they are abandoning their business, pulling up roots, and traveling over a thousand miles, to consecrate their lives to Jewish learning for its own sake.

Adult education, as usually defined, means little more than casual, haphazard and occasional study, perhaps for one hour a week, of whatever subject may be available under local auspices. The course is usually ill-defined, the desire vague, and the study irregular, yet for all this it is better than nothing. The Beckers, however, demonstrate that adult Jewish education can be something more than just an adjunct to living—it can, for a period, be made life itself, and the idea is attractive.

Too many of us become so immersed in the business of living, so involved in the petty details of day to day life, that we lose our sense of true Jewish values. We forget that Jewish education need not stop at Bar Mitzvah, and we become unaware of the fact that we may have lost contact with true Jewish sources, even while we may observe the forms, and mouth the phrases. Without constant study and thought, Jewish living, too, can become mechanical.

Why can not the achievement of the Beckers be made an ideal for others who have often wished to study, but never could find a way to do it. There are sacrifices involved. The plan requires several, perhaps many years of saving, to make it possible. It takes courage to pull up roots and go to New York, or Chicago, or elsewhere that suitable facilities exist for full time study. A thousand ties bind one to home. A thousand habits must be overcome, but the step is not impossible.

There is much to commend the plan even beyond its contribution to a better Jewish life. As a relaxation from business strife and the hurly burly of daily life, it is undoubtedly a mental rest of therapeutic value.

The time may even come when it will be possible to set aside a full year of study as a periodic sabbatical for the businessman and housewife. The implications of what the Beckers are doing are immense.

"And the New Year..."

THE New Year will not be a very easy one for Jews anywhere. It will be a year of stocktaking and house cleaning and thought. It will be a year of increasing liberation and of proportionate sorrow. It will be a year, too, of homecoming and finding out and for some of us a chance of Hitlerism and our people can never again repeat itself. And so, in this column, I am going to give myself a New Year's present by handing out some free advice for the next twelve months to people who have never asked me for it. Why don't you add to this list as you wish and send your "open letters" in miniature to me and maybe if some of the people are around New York and environs, I can see them and discover how they feel. Anyhow here goes:

To FIELD MARSHAL VIS-COUNT GORT HIGH COMMISSIONER OF PALESTINE—

You have just arrived in Palestine. Your predecessor has just left, having almost been assassinated and having made bitter, anti-Zionist speech. You have come from London and from Rome and you have, I am sure, made up your mind about policy and administration and even how you feel about the Jews and the Arabs. There is only one way for you to become popular and important and truly influential in this little and most difficult country you are to govern. And that is by deciding that Palestine is to be a Jewish National Homeland, and that you are, inasmuch as possible, going to do your level best to make the building of Palestine easy for the Jews and tolerable for the Arabs. It is a hard task and an unprecedented one, perhaps. But I am afraid that I have no other advice for you, Mr. High Commissioner, save that you become a good Zionist and a true friend of ours!

To DR. CHAIM WEIZMANN—

You are the President of the World Zionist Organization. You will be 70 years old this autumn, and I wish you every good wish. But you are also about to face what may well be the single most crucial year in Zionist history. And your role is a clear one. You must represent the Zionist Organization, which is something I think you have not done for a long time. And you must represent the Jews of Palestine which, I think, you have never done—at least not adequately. But the past is the past, and you are, after all, the head of the one unified and recognized government we have for a potential Jewish State and it is up to you to see to it that we are not sold down the river. You will have to fight hard and long and remember that appeasement is both old fashioned and expensive. The Jews of Palestine do not want partition this year or next year or at all. And Zionists don't want to be apologized for and excused for and they don't want their demands presented in a whittled-down, pallid form any longer. So for you, this next year will be a tough one, and we wish you luck.

To MAYOR FIORELLO LA GUARDIA—

You once said that you didn't know you had enough Jewish blood to boast about. Well, maybe you have, and anyhow it doesn't really matter. What matters is

AL SEGAL Speaks on

Just Rambling

IT'S awfully frightening, the way the years run away. It seems only yesterday that your Mr. Segal was writing his piece for last New Year and here's another New Year twitching Mr. Segal's ear and reminding him: "Yes, Segal, another year's gone and you aren't any younger, you know."

For that reason Mr. Segal doesn't like New Years or birthday or any of the other anniversaries that admonish him how short time is. When he was young he used to look forward to these memorial occasions because they brought good things to eat and because the prospect of having more years to his credit looked good to a young snip.

In his youth the time between one year and another always was long; a year was twelve long months and contained 365 long days. But what's a year now. A year seems scarcely more than the time between Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. Segal now counts time ponderously by decades... The 30's... the 20's... the 1910's. Or he counts it by presidential administrations. Yes, that was the Hoover year, or, sure, that was in Taft's time, or let's see now, McKinley was president then.

Thus he tries to keep up his respect for time. Otherwise time would have no more spacious grandeur than the grass that withereth in the night. Thus he kids his soul and comforts it with a feeling that the speed of time may not be so horrible after all.

Even then he has his doubts. He looks at ten years. Well, in the last ten years his children grew up and were married and went their ways and brought grandchildren, and the old house became far too large and he moved into a small apartment, as at the beginning of his domestic life. It had been like a quick circle. It seems no time at all... Like morning, noon and now it was toward evening—all in a day.

So when your Mr. Segal comes to a New Year he just rambles nostalgically around and babbles like an old man looking back with regretful eyes at all the Junes he has lost... the pretty girls who have faded away... the times when he could stay up all night and feel fresh in the morning... the time he was a slender young man who didn't have to trouble over each bite of bread he ate, lest it fatten him more... the time he was a gleaming young father wheeling the knids in the baby carriage.

Such are the meditations of Mr. Segal at this New Year time—an occasion when he is supposed to give his mind Jewishly to deep, philosophical thoughts on human existence and on what it's all about and what can be done about improving it in the year to come.

As he gets rushed along by the years, Mr. Segal feels he knows less and less what it's all about. He has been more dreadfully confused every year during the past ten.

When he was younger he thought he knew all the answers. At this season he used to write dissertations on the bright meaning of life to which the eyes of man seemed to be opening wider and wider. Soon man's eyes would see the full dawn and his divine nature would be fulfilled and he would understand all the precious values.

But now Mr. Segal is like a man working on a crazy picture puzzle in which it is so hard to get the pieces together so that he may see what the picture is like. As, in accordance with the New Year practice, he attempts to figure out what his life is all about and properly to instruct the readers on the mystical matter, his fingers grope in confusion among the shattered pieces of human existence.

The human race has been a terrible disappointment. It seems to learn nothing and forget nothing. The dreadful punishment it has suffered seems to have taught it nothing and it keeps on chewing old falsehoods and warming up the old hates that helped to get it into trouble in the first place.

Its heart remains eaten by old suspicions and its mouth spews ancient malices and its vision is cock-eyed by reason of timeless envies.

It can march loyally as one, as in brotherhood, on errands of death but it breaks into many hateful parts at the mountainside that would lead it to a better way of life.

It seems to learn neither kindness nor compassion from its pain. Mr. Segal used to write that the human race surely would learn compassion from its agony; it would see that blood of the brethren who were slain was all the same, that the pain of one was the same pain as of the other.

In New Year dissertations, as he tried to understand what living meant, he guessed that being compassionate was the main thing.

So your Mr. Segal is in no mood at all to be a philosopher who looks at life and expounds its meaning at this season. He'd rather keep on rambling around pleasantly... The way his grandchildren have come up since last New Year... Ellen is already in her second year in the nursery school and is drawing pictures that really look like what he means to draw... Jan is already asking his mother to play Mozart pieces and he not yet three... Paul, the youngest, knows railroad cars and can tell a caboose from a locomotive.

Yes, time runs along and Mr. Segal himself found a gray hair in his head only the other day. That's what a year does to a man but then he couldn't complain; his mirror told him that he was still so young-looking. Only his contemporaries look old; it's always the other guy who is an old man.

In the midst of these happy digressions Mr. Segal stops short to let a New Year prayer come up out of his heart. Well, anyway, he thinks, it has got to be a better world, on account of Ellen, Jan and Paul and all the other kids. For their sake something better must come out of all this... "O Lord God, show us Thy will and open the eyes of men that they may discern it—for the sake of these children."

You see, it seems that Mr. Segal guesses there is some hope in the human race, after all. Copyright 1944, Seven Arts Feature Syndicate that you must stop boasting about Oswego and the barbed wire camp that has been set up for one thousand refugees there, and try and get something done about bringing in many more. Because, Mr. Mayor, the war hasn't ended yet and we have always thought of you as an ally of the oppressed.

To the AMERICAN JEWISH CONFERENCE—

Ladies and gentlemen, this year you are to convene again. I can only suggest that you do a better job than you did last time. And that the comedy of 25 Jewish organizations running up and down the streets of Washington clutching all sorts of memorandums and petitions will end and that you will really manage to eliminate the non-representative groups and wield together firmly those that count. You have done a lot this year to get Jewish groups in this country together—there is a lot still to be done. And don't be quite so secretive if at all possible. Please? We all want to know what happens in your meetings and what is the latest news about where and when the second session is to be held. Besides the delegates want to know—and they do enter into the picture, somewhere, don't they? And

I hope that in this coming year you will maintain the same high standard of dignity in your public statements and publicity and releases and in the speeches of your executives. On that score—you have succeeded in setting a beneficial example.

To PETER BERGSON ET CIE—

While it is perfectly true that you have been the victim of a nasty smear campaign and that you have been forced to tell everyone all about the ulcers which really are good enough reason to keep you out of the armed forces, you must realize that you have disappointed a lot of people who believed in you and pleased almost everyone who said that you would come to no good end. Your latest grave political decision to advocate the setting up within Palestine of reservations based on the dubious model of Oswego is just another instance of a lack of basic understanding. We don't want Jews on sufferance in Palestine and we don't want them behind barbed wire. There are still certificates available and we want them to be used and when they are used up, we will fight to have the doors of Palestine opened and we will bring in refugees through "illegal" immigration if we have to but we won't agree to have them brought to Palestine as they were brought to Oswego. So, please, this coming year, don't speak for all of us all the time.

To SIDNEY HILLMAN—

To bad that they got you on the "alien born" angle. But now you can lead a fight against bigotry and prejudice and convert anti-Semitism in the "better circles." Jew-baiting is done, not only by hooligans, but by "respectable" newspapermen and senators and so forth. If PAC ever becomes what you want it to be, don't forget that you were attacked as a Jew from Lithuania who dared to suggest a better way to run this country.

To WESTBROOK PEGLER—

I am glad that you are now working for William Randolph Hearst and extend my congratulations. This year will be a happy one for you, because now you are where you belong.

To the COUNCIL FOR JUD-

ISM—

My advice to you for the New Year is that you think the whole thing over and decide to close shop. Nobody likes you very much and some of us are quite ashamed of you and of the press (Continued on next page)

BEN HECHT'S NEW BOOK

I DETERMINED to do little dissecting of Jews, but there is one Jew I have decided to examine closely—myself. On reading what I have written, I find a curious use of two first person pronouns beginning to confuse the syntax. The writer is, apparently, uncertain whether he is I, the Jew, or We, the Americans. And on occasion he offers himself as a citizen of some literary limbo where thought is its own nationality.

Accordingly, I pause to find out just who is writing this book—a Jew, an American, or an intellectual phantom. I am inclined to vote in advance for the intellectual phantom, for that is what an honest writer should be. An honest writer should be able to espouse the cause of any people persecuted by misfortune without having cousins or uncles on the run. His fury should be a stranger to any self-interest, and he should wear the colors of no country but of reason.

Literature is full of such fine knights from nowhere who fight always the battles of the oppressed—but I doubt if I am one of them. I doubt if any Jew ever wrote of Jews except as a Jew—inspired by the desire to defend or glorify them (God knows they can use a few ruffles) or by the hope of proving he is no Jew at all.

It would please me to think my own fervor is no more than that of a mind trained in the humanities under the beneficent culture of the United States. For, truly, I have never been anything else but an American and to find myself at forty-nine writing out of an obstreperous Jewish heritage is as confusing to me as if I had waked up one morning and found an entirely new language in my head. It is also in a way proof of a thing said against Jews—namely, that they are, in a pinch or in the long run, Jews and nothing else.

But this, too, I doubt. I doubt equally whether I am I, the Jew, or We, the Americans. I could make out a case for myself as either or neither, which is another way of saying that I am both. Both I am and both I insist on being, and it will need better anti-Semites than I have yet read to unmarry me.

Were I a Frenchman, Pole, Spaniard, German, Englishman, or Italian, I am certain I would not put in this claim to honest wedlock. History would have too great a rebuttal to make, even the history of the English.

It was only as little ago as 1923 that Hilaire Belloc—a dull enough fellow to be worthy of representation a fair share of English thought, wrote in his book, "The Jews": "The continued presence of the Jewish nation intermingled with other nations alien to it presents a permanent problem of the greatest character... the wholly different culture, tradition, race, and religion of Europe make Europe a permanent antagonist of Israel... the problem is, how to relax those strains and to set things permanently at their ease again. There are two ways to reach a desirable end. The first is by elimination of what is alien. The second is by segregation. There is no other way. Here is a Barkis who is unwilling to be an Englishman who would remain, under all temptations, a toothy bachelor and marry no Jews. And, mind you, this was after the original war to make the world a democratic planet had been fought and won. (I am being facetious. I know that wars of human liberation have nothing to do with Jews.)

Exhuming Mr. Belloc

I have no desire to cox the cadaver Belloc or any of his surviving kith to make the Jew an honest man, since it is as impossible to change the prejudices of the living as it is to alter those of the dead. In this connection I recall the opinion of Epicharmus, a Greek philosopher, whose wisdom has survived only in a single paragraph.

"Why argue with any man's error," said this ancient one, "when it is his error that is he? As well seek to convince a cow that the most dazzling creature on earth is not a cow, or prove to a pig that the finest resident of our world is not a pig."

The philosophy of Mr. Belloc is not as innocent as that of such self-infatuated fauna. It is loud in the land, and Mr. Belloc, dead and returned to his fastidious English maker, must be a happy shade. His notions are now rampant in Europe at least, where the Jew has been pronounced so great an alien that he is unfit even for living anywhere. The odd thing is that Mr. Belloc himself has not prospered as well as his philosophy. He has already dwindled out of literature and become no more than a footnote to yesterday.

Then why do I write about him at all? Catholics who know Mr. Belloc to have been one of the literary darlings of Catholicism will imagine I am slyly belaboring the Papacy. I am doing nothing of the sort. Mr. Belloc's religious affiliation has no interest for me. His choice of a master was more fortunate for him than for the master—this is the extent of my opinion of his religion.

What actually interests me in Mr. Belloc is the fact that he is the articulation of a whole tribe of Anglo-Saxons who are usually mum. These are people whose very mumness is both their social and intellectual distinction. They are the stern, cud-chewing Englishmen (and their American cousins) whose righteousness seldom ventures beyond monosyllables.

Mr. Belloc was one of these word swallows in reverse. He shared with them the deep fear of ideas that keeps them deaf and dumb. But he was the English monosyllable with the scribbler's itch. His talents, by the way, were not confined to chatting about the Jews. He went after Topics like a man in a frenzy. He wrote books "On Making an Omelette," "On Cats," "On Dressing Up," "On Architecture," "On Mules," "A Guide to Boring," "On Emeralds," "A Record of a Merchant of Tenth Street," "Farrago," a "Heroic Poem in Praise of Wine"; on Hills, on Oceans, on the Thames, on the House of Commons, on Beauvais Tapestry. He has a book called "On Anything" and a companion volume titled, "On Everything." It was as if he had plunged into literature with a cry of "Button, Button, who's got the Button?"

The Silence That Speaks
One would imagine that in the course of flying from pillar to post and setting down a hundred thousand pages of gossip, the pen of Mr. Belloc would point for at least one brief moment inward. It does not. The busy scribe who made a good penny out of rehashing all the biographies he could find in the Club library never turned his eye to the great wealth of material that sat in his own scribbler's chair. It is this silence I propose to examine.

He wrote no word about himself except in a fragment of several pages called "Autobiography." In these he explains his reticence on Belloc. It is because he is gifted with a quality called "Pudor." This is a bit of Green for which, he says, there is no modern equivalent, and he defines it as "that element of salvation in us which prevents us from singing at the top of our voices in railway carriages." Discussing further his dogged silence on Belloc, he writes, "we preserve a little shrine. We keep a little hedged field. . . . That we should desire to write our lives is inevitable. . . . We are restrained at heart by this feeling, 'Why should I cast these pearls before my snouted fellow citizens? Why should I open the Holy of Holies?'"

Mr. Belloc, who chattered his head off for fifty years, is proud of having revealed no single secret of himself. I wonder why this incredibly snoop fellow kept his nose out of the Holy of Holies—his own interior. Was it a Holy of Holies or something quite else?

Mr. Belloc is entitled to his silence. I am certainly glad he did not write any more than he did. But I still have two other questions to ask of his Pudor:

What urged Mr. Belloc to pick up a broom and sweep out Jews? Where was the real dirt that Mr. Belloc mistook for Jews?

Atrophy as a Social Art

I have gone to the trouble of documenting Mr. Belloc a bit because he is one of the flowers that anti-Semitism wears in its buttonhole. He is out of a very fine English bouquet.

I have met a few Bellocs and I have heard of others. They are as identical as the salmon whom they somewhat resemble. Their noses twitch with disdain (and a touch of hayfever), their voices refuse to finish words (the more left unsaid, the better), they stare a lot as if they were half stunned, and they look as if they had been greased against human contacts. This general terror of life is at the bottom of all snobbery; and all this remarkable paralysis of mind, vocal cords, and motor reflexes is offered to society as evidence of superiority. Superiority to what, forsooth?

There is one credo that operates this by-product group of Anglo-Saxons. It is the Commandment to stand pat on what you know. And if you know nothing, stand pat on that. The main thing is to use neither your senses nor your mind, and to be have generally as if you were a gifted statue. In this dedication to immobility lies the secret of Anglo-Saxon snobbery. The garden statues that practise it have all the Bellocian fervor for eyelessness. They snort with him: It is better to decorate yourself than know yourself or (good God!) let anybody else know you."

I am not writing here of the artificial snobs—the ones who borrow the stupidity of their "betters" along with their accents and haberdashery. These are people who know themselves only too well and are miserably dissatisfied with their information. It would be unfair to bunch these synthetic snobs with the true psychotic disdainers of life. They are imposters—even as anti-Semites. The anti-Semitism they put on is a threadbare thing. You can see their hindquarters sticking out.

The Bellocian or true English anti-Semitism is part of something much deeper than any such social pretense. It is an authentic negation, and much more than a highly-tighty refusal to say hello to any odd-looking neighbor. It is a fear of saying hello to itself. It is full of Pudor.

I would like to suggest to all the hard working ladies of Hadassah that they tell us a little more about what they have been doing. What I have know of your work is admirable, and I am very curious. The Editor's Chair

We had a lot of plans for some very good articles for this issue but for various reasons they haven't panned out. For instance, we have been hounding Sidney Hillman trying to get him to hold still for an interview. To let him say his piece about the charges of some Republicans and of course all the native fascists about his being "foreign-born," communistic, etc. The interview will be forthcoming shortly, but up until Sunday when this is being written is still in the mill.

Another feature we had all ready for this issue was in connection with The Chicago Tribune and Col. McCormick. After a lot of research, the article was all ready, when a national agency suggested it be held up, and you know me, how I kowtow to the higher ups, so the story will have to wait. Incidentally the article shows by facts and figures that not only is McCormick not consciously anti-Semitic, but most of the responsible Chicago leadership give him a clean bill of health on this score.

The other feature article we had up our sleeve is in connection with the poll we are making on the American Jewish conference. We were just about ready to call the poll a failure, since only about 100 out of the 500 delegates had taken the trouble to reply, and to merely give a summary of the tabulation, when after no replies had come in for about ten days, Sunday's mail brought eight more. So we'll wait a week or two on this one.

So you see we're still trying. One of these days we'll have the paper we want. Alive, vibrant, up to the minute on news, and with its pulse on every important Jewish happening wherever it is. If such a paper can be produced, a good many of the ills of the U. S. Jewish community will be overcome, and this is not said without any boasting.

New World Situation as Regards to Anti-Semitism

IN France to be sure, and even in other Nazi-dominated nations, anti-Semitism is definitely being cleared out with the fascist collaborators, which is a hopeful sign for the restitution and repatriation of the European Jewry, but it is an anomaly of the world we live in that while this goes on in Europe, in the United States anti-Semitism grows and prospers.

One phenomenon of the liberation has been the ferreting out by the liberated people of the fascist sympathizers. Since these are the anti-Semites, then anti-Semitism goes with them, for they go out as the spreaders of hatred and the symbols of the divide and conquer technique. Whether this is happening in Poland and the Balkan countries, where anti-Semitism was more of a native product than in France and Italy, we have no way of knowing, but since these nations are being liberated by the Red Army, it can be taken for granted that anti-Semitism will find no place in their several governments either.

So that while the ill-disappears in one part of the world, it seems to grow in the United States. Yet what happens in one part of this closely-united world is bound to have its repercussions in the other parts, so that if the peoples of Europe assert themselves to eliminate anti-Semitism, this is bound to have its effect in this hemisphere. The common people, having learned their lesson, probably will not be tricked again by the lure of Jew as a scape-goat.

The situation will be changed then. Whereas, heretofore the center of anti-Semitic propaganda was Europe, now what perhaps will come from there will be the message of brotherhood. What this will mean for anti-Semitism in the United States must be obvious, unless the seeds have been too well planted, and the harm has already been done beyond repair.

Tremendous Victory Relief Drive Must Be in the Offing

THE point that the United Jewish Appeal would spend $40,000,000 this year, made by Rabbi James G. Heller, one of its national chairman, indicates in the fact that in 1944 alone the organization would go in the red for $12,000,000 (Henry Montor recently revealed that the 1944 income would be about $28,000,000) that somewhere in the near future a gigantic victory relief drive similar to those in the middle twenties is in the offing for U. S. Jewry.

There is no question but that American Jewry will make good any obligation of the United Jewish Appeal. The organization has the unbounded faith of the Jewish community of the United States, and its credit is unlimited.

But it is revealing to know that although in 1943 only $18,000,000, was raised and somewhere close to that amount spent, just a little more than a year later, the amount spent jumps more than one hundred per cent.

The news gives an inkling of the needs. What is being given now, will bear no relation to what will have to be given as soon as the advancing armies open more Nazi territory to the world. Nor does it need repeating that whatever amount is needed and asked for, this will be little enough when compared to what has been given in lives and property by those Jews unfortunate enough to be in the path of Hitler's aggressions.

Gerald L. K. Smith—What To Do About Him

TWO opposing views on the recent convention of Gerald L. K. Smith's American First party are expressed by The Sentinel, of Chicago, and The Jewish News of Detroit.

Jack I. Fishbein goes to one extreme when he writes: "When will the Department of Justice act? When are the Anti-Defamation League and the American Jewish Congress, and our other organizations going to begin to move? How long must we wait? It is the solemn duty of each one of us to take matters into our own hands by writing the Justice Department demanding that Smith be indicted and tried for treason."

Phil Slomovitz on the other hand says, "What we need is legislation which will make it impossible for another bigoted group to disgrace the American Flag, as the Smith group has done last week."

"Action has begun, and we can feel easier about it."

"Christians have acted, and we are grateful for the survival of the American spirit of fair play."

To the Family of The Jewish Post

AS one member of The Jewish Post family to the other, let The Post wish you a year of health and happiness. For you whose hearts are tried, may the New Year bring curcuse, and the return of your loved ones.

"The prompt repudiation of the Smith idea in American politics proves that the conscience of America is clear and that our great traditions will remain safe and will not be permitted to be tampered with by bigots."

Of course neither of the two views is realistic. Under a democracy, there are no laws which will safely eliminate anti-Semitism. And neither of the two editorials make any specific recommendations along that long. Mr. Fishbein is excited that nothing is being done, and Mr. Slomovitz seems to feel that everything is under control. They can't both be right.

A law making it mandatory that persons who attack religious groups must publish the source of their income, might make a difference. And this would be a democratic process.

Democracies must invent some new devices as safeguards against those who selfishly would destroy them in their unscrupulous drive for power by whatever means. And the members of the democracies must be vigilant to see that none of the present safeguards are allowed to be ignored or by-passed for want of courage or interest.

Current Comment

Let us hope that the sorrows and the wounds of the past few years will by God's grace be healed, and a new era of goodwill and brotherhood such as the world has never seen, arise from the slaughter and destruction.

valent in our presumed spokesmen a spirit of radicalism that must be destroyed root and branch at any cost or else a leadership as yet undefined must be discovered.

It is only natural that our more immediate interest should be in the future of Beth Israel, and that future is bright indeed. Our distinguished Congregation has established itself as a strictly American Reform Congregation, and through its acts and deliberations has evidenced its willingness to prosper or fail upon principles which are unassailable in a strictly Reform Congregation. Whereas we gladly extend to our co-religionists of every category and classification the right to interpret Judaism as they see fit, we shall at any cost, at the same time, retain this privilege for ourselves, resolute in our purpose and uncompromising in our attitude.

Upon all Jews for the coming year I beseech God's blessing and shall pray that our common problem may be solved by a Power much greater than our own, whose purposes are not discernible, but whose judgments are not to be questioned.

only exemption to the prescription of Yom Kippur fasting occurs in the case of those who are ill or otherwise impaired so that fasting constitutes a danger to their health. The fasting of Yom Kippur is not to be considered an end in itself, but rather the means to a whole-hearted repentance. Fasting will not atone for sins, but it will put the individual in that frame of mind in which his whole body will be more attuned to the seriousness of the day and to the purpose for which he fasts.

Breaking the Fast—After the return from the synagogue at the conclusion of the Yom Kippur ay service, the individual breaks his fast amidst the family circle. Before partaking of the food, the Father recites the blessing over the bread, and all eat their first morsel of food, their slice of bread. It is customary to serve light foods and warm beverages, instead of a heavy meal.

Time to Begin Building a Succah—The breaking of the Day of Atonement fast is considered the signal for the family to begin its task of building the Succah (booth for the observance of the Feast of Booths) because, it must be remembered, Succoth is but four days off. The preliminary preparations thus take place that very night so that the family's Succah may be truly beautiful. (A description of a Succah and the materials necessary for its construction will be presented in the next Bulletin.)

Yom Kippur Lamp—The 24-hour Yom Kippur candle described above may usually be purchased at a small cost at most Jewish grocery stores. It notice is given sufficiently far in advance, your Rabbi will be happy to secure one for you.

Recipe for Kreplach—The following is the recipe for noodle dough which is an essential part of the Kreplach recipe:

3 eggs
2 cups flour (about)
¼ teaspoon salt.

Beat eggs slightly, add salt and enough flour to make a stiff dough. Knead well; let stand covered, ½ hour. Roll out very thin, spread on cloth to dry. It must not be the least bit sticky and not so dry that it will break or be brittle.

The recipe for Kreplach is as follows:

Noodle dough
½ teaspoon onion juice
1 lb. cooked meat, chopped
1 egg
Salt and pepper.

First make the Noodle Dough from recipe above. Add seasoning and egg to meat. With knife mark dough in 2-inch squares, place a teaspoon of meat mixture on every square, and then fold each in 3-cornered shape, pressing edges well together. Drop in boiling soup, or salted water; let cook 15 minutes. Drain in colander, place on hot platter, nad pour over 2 tablespoons of hot fat. May be garnished with browned cracker crumbs, chopped walnuts, or gingerbread crumbs. Or may be eaten without garnishment.

The 14th Palestine-wide Jewish medical conference convening here this week to discuss ophthalmological, endemical and epidemic diseases heard United States Admiral Charles Stephenson advocate more attention be paid to preventive medicine, "so that your gorgeous hospitals will be half-empty and the population will be healthier and live longer."
